2016–2018 Catalog

Lutheran School of Theology at Chicago
The Lutheran School of Theology at Chicago Catalog 2016–2018

The catalog is an announcement of the projected academic programs of the Lutheran School of Theology at Chicago for the academic years 2016–2017 and 2017–2018. These programs are subject to change. The information here is in no way binding upon LSTC. Rules, regulations, and academic procedures of the seminary are briefly described. Definitive information on these matters will be found in LSTC’s constitution and in the formal actions of the board of directors, the faculty and other governing bodies of the school.

Greetings from the President

At the start of every new year, I hold conversations with different student groups. Each has distinctive delights and concerns, ideas about what to retain or improve. I was surprised this year when one of our new students asked what gives me joy and hope. No one ever asked that before. Though at first thrown by the question’s candor, there was no hesitation in my answer. “Students,” I quickly replied. “It’s you who fill me with joy and hope.”

Maybe that’s just the kind of corny response you’d expect from someone like me, but at our seminary, I am not alone in saying that students impel what we do. Sometimes, one’s day is consumed with the ordinary tasks of keeping a school running. We monitor finances, grade assignments, maintain records, repair facilities, seek donations, and so forth—stuff that surely fails to inspire. But these are only partial activities, penultimate tasks.

What truly excites us are people like you discerning afresh whether some form of ministry is right for you. You come to us with diverse lives, remarkable experiences, amazing stories, inventive plans. In a world where many are cynical and disheartened about the church and the power of the gospel, you show calm confidence there is still something worthy of pouring out your life. That’s astonishing—and it fills us with joy and hope.

As you read this catalogue and review your choices, I hope you’ll consider how the Lutheran School of Theology at Chicago is a distinctive place for your formation to flourish. We’re not yesterday’s school attuned to bygone days. Instead, we form leaders called into the world, bearing witness to the good news of Jesus Christ in many different ways. That involves risk—and if you want to join in that venture, we could be the place for you.

Should you become part of our community, not only will you receive a fine education in a thriving setting, but also be assured that we will welcome what you have to offer. Your commitment gives our whole church joy and hope for the days ahead. This is a fascinating place with global reach and rich opportunities. We would be delighted to get to know you better and encourage your discernment for service.

Amidst the usual prose elsewhere in this catalog are testimonies by current students. Let them tell the journey they’ve taken at our school, and then imagine how you could join that story. And when you’re ready, I invite you to become part of this fascinating and faithful community. Next time you’re in Chicago, please come by for a visit. We’d be delighted to welcome you. Until then, may God bless your discernment.

Sincerely,

James Nieman
President

Mission
The Lutheran School of Theology at Chicago (LSTC), a seminary of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America (ELCA), forms visionary leaders to bear witness to the good news of Jesus Christ.

Vision
LSTC seeks to build up the Body of Christ and work for a world of peace and justice that cares for the whole creation.

Values
LSTC is

• Christ-centered—Strives by God's grace to follow Christ's call to loving service.

• Responsive to context—Embraces its diverse urban setting and exciting academic environment that enable learning from and ministering to the community. Relationships with synods and congregations provide academic and practical experiences that meet the needs of the church.

• Attentive to diversity—Emphasizes knowing and honoring the perspectives of all nationalities, ethnicities, cultures, Christian traditions, and religions to form leaders whose witness to the Gospel will build communities of hospitality and reconciliation.

• Committed to excellence—Sends leaders into church and world who are prepared academically, practically, and spiritually to serve in a variety of vocational and ministry settings. Faculty members are faithful Christians who are internationally recognized scholars and teachers. Administration and staff strive to provide exemplary service to all constituents.

Welcoming Statement
LSTC strives to offer a community and academic experience that is grounded in the good news of the gospel and shaped by our urban, multicultural, ecumenical, global, interfaith and university–related context and commitments.

Our primary mission is to prepare women and men for a complex, pluralistic world in need of faithful and courageous ministers to serve in a variety of contexts. Although a large percentage of students come to LSTC to prepare for ordained or lay rostered ministries in the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America, LSTC is also enriched and transformed by ecumenical and interfaith students in our various master’s and doctoral programs, as well as ecumenical and interfaith colleagues.

As a Reconciling in Christ seminary, LSTC seeks to offer hospitality and welcome to all who enter LSTC’s academic programs. Following Jesus Christ, whose reconciling love bridged barriers and made strangers friends, we seek to welcome and learn from one another’s particularity—including but not limited to one another’s race, national or ethnic origin, age, gender, sexual orientation, gender identity and expression, physical ability, social status and theological diversity. LSTC is always becoming a reconciling community. Reconciliation is an ongoing activity and effort that we do together.
Partners
Embracing the rich diversity of metropolitan Chicago as an educational laboratory, LSTC carries out its mission in collaboration with many partners: the network of ELCA seminaries, especially Trinity Lutheran Seminary and Wartburg Theological Seminary, LSTC's partners in the ELCA's Covenant Cluster of seminaries; the Association of Chicago Theological Schools (ACTS) and the University of Chicago; Valparaiso University; individual, institutional and congregational colleagues in ministry; and the synods of Regions 4 and 5 of the ELCA.

McCormick Theological Seminary (Presbyterian Church USA) is LSTC's closest collaborative partner among the Hyde Park seminaries. Following the move of its campus to Hyde Park in 1975 until 2010, McCormick's classes were held at LSTC. The two seminaries jointly own and manage the JKM Library, a leading U.S. theological library. They also jointly administer the educational ministry of the Language Resource and Writing Center (LRWC). In February 2003, McCormick completed and moved into its new administrative building on LSTC's campus. The two schools have taken seriously the denominational agreement, “A Formula of Agreement” (1997) that established a relationship of full communion between the ELCA and the churches of the Reformation, including the Presbyterian Church (USA), and have developed a collaboration that benefits both seminaries through a shared campus and some shared services and celebrations.

Degree Programs and Resources
Because the church needs a wide variety of leaders, LSTC offers the following degree programs:

- Master of Divinity to prepare people for ordained service in the church
- Master of Arts in Ministry to prepare people for professional service as on the Word and Service Roster in the ELCA or other specialized ministries
- Master of Arts in Theological Studies to serve those wishing to pursue theological study as an academic discipline or for the nourishment of their faith;
- Doctor of Ministry to prepare pastors for mid-career growth in the arts of ministry;
- Master of Theology and Doctor of Philosophy to prepare people for teaching ministries or for theologically enriched pastoral leadership.
LSTC also provides resources for theological education through:

- The JKM Library
- The Albert “Pete” Pero, Jr. Multicultural Center
- A Center of Christian-Muslim Engagement for Peace and Justice
- Zygon Center for Religion and Science
- continuing education programs for pastors and lay persons, including the annual Leadership Conference
- web-based learning modules, podcasts, and videos
- publications such as Currents in Theology and Mission and Zygon: Journal of Religion and Science
- faculty blogs such as “We Talk. We Listen. Conversations in Diversity,” and “Wild Sparrows”
- lectures, workshops, conferences and other on-campus public events

Accreditation

The Lutheran School of Theology is accredited by the Higher Learning Commission of the North Central Association of Colleges and Schools and by the Commission on Accrediting of the Association of Theological Schools in the United States and Canada. The following degree programs are approved: master of divinity (MDiv), master of arts in ministry (MAM), master of arts in Theological Studies (MATS), doctor of ministry (DMin), master of theology (ThM) and doctor of philosophy (PhD). In addition, Sigtuna, Sweden, is accredited as an extension site for the doctor of ministry in preaching. The contact information for the accrediting bodies is:

Non-Discrimination Policy
The Lutheran School of Theology at Chicago, a seminary of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America, values diversity in its faculty, staff and students. Thus, the hiring and admissions practices of the Lutheran School of Theology at Chicago offer equal opportunity to persons regardless of race, color, national and ethnic origin, age, gender, sexual orientation, gender identity, marital or veteran’s status, physical ability and social class.

Location

Chicago
LSTC’s founders believed that Christian faith and theological scholarship should engage and grapple with the challenges of a pluralistic, dynamic, and ever-changing world. They sought a location that was urban, near a university and rich with ecumenical opportunities. They chose a spot adjacent to the University of Chicago, one of America’s finest academic institutions, in the ethnically and economically diverse Hyde Park neighborhood on the South Side of Chicago. This strategic location provides abundant opportunities for learning both inside and outside the classroom.

Chicago is one of the largest cities in the United States. Home to 77 distinct neighborhoods and 26 miles of lakefront along Lake Michigan, Chicago is known for its innovative architecture, world-class museums, and diverse population. Chicago features many opportunities to experience premier music, food, sports, nature, and cultural activities year-round. Transportation options abound in Chicago, including the Metra commuter train, Divvy Bike share program, buses and elevated trains (referred to as the ‘El’), and even water taxis that make exploring the city a treat. Neighborhood and holiday festivals that celebrate the diversity of the city’s residents take place year round.

Chicago also hosts a variety of faiths and religious traditions, making it an ideal place for theological study. LSTC students have many opportunities to not only learn about but experience other religions and faiths in the wider Chicagoland area.

For more information about Chicago, visit www.cityofchicago.org and www.choosechicago.com.

Hyde Park
Chicago’s Hyde Park neighborhood is seven miles south of downtown Chicago along the shore of Lake Michigan. Lakefront parks, tree-lined streets, public transportation, good schools and rich ethnic and cultural diversity give Hyde Park a small town neighborhood feel without sacrificing any of the conveniences of urban living. Shopping, schools, museums, the lake, and public transportation are all a short walk from LSTC’s campus. In addition to being home to the University of Chicago, five different denominational seminaries are based in Hyde Park.

Established in 1891, the University of Chicago quickly established itself as a leading center of research, teaching and learning. Eighty-nine Nobel Prize winners have been faculty, students, or researchers at the university. Today, with nearly 15,000 students and over 2,100 faculty members, it is a dominant presence in the neighborhood. LSTC students and faculty have full borrowing privileges at the Joseph Regenstein Library, one of the nation’s leading research libraries, located just two blocks from the seminary. The university provides social and cultural resources for the area. LSTC students have access to UChicago’s athletic facilities and intramural sports leagues, and various music ensembles. For more information about the University of Chicago see www.uchicago.edu.

LSTC Campus
The Lutheran School of Theology at Chicago is located just north of the University of Chicago campus and one mile west of Lake Michigan. Designed by Chicago architectural firm Perkins+Will and dedicated in 1967, the architects described the three-building design as providing a balance between looking “outward to the variety and vitality of the city life all around it, and inward to the quiet solitude of its own central court.” The design was praised for its use of glass, steel, and concrete that felt thoroughly modern and secular.

Classrooms, administrative and faculty offices, the Augustana Chapel, JKM Library, the Refectory, and the Learning, Resource, and Writing Center are all housed in the buildings at 55th and University. A central courtyard provides an open, green space at the center of the campus and an ample parking garage below. Student apartments are within two blocks of the main campus.
According to LSTC's first president, Stewart Herman (1964–1971), the intent for the new campus for the Lutheran School of Theology at Chicago was to “not shut out the world, but to let it in, and to give the seminary easy access to the world.”

In 2003, McCormick Theological Seminary (Presbyterian Church, USA) completed a new building adjacent to LSTC. McCormick and LSTC’s shared facilities and collaborative efforts in theological education are one of the many assets of being located in Hyde Park, and just one example of how LSTC continues to live out its legacy as a seminary rooted in the urban and diverse context of Chicago.

Visiting the Seminary

LSTC encourages prospective students to visit the campus in order to experience what it feels like to be a seminarian in Hyde Park. Visits can be arranged year-round, though visits planned during the academic year allow for more opportunities for interaction and engagement within the LSTC community. During a visit, prospective students may: sit in on a class, attend chapel, get a tour of campus and LSTC’s housing, share a meal with current students, have a conversation with faculty, learn more about degree programs and financial aid, and explore the Hyde Park neighborhood and the many attractions in the city of Chicago.

Complimentary guest housing is available, as are travel stipends. To schedule a visit, contact admissions@lstc.edu.

Seminary Sampler

Seminary Sampler events are hosted by the Admissions Office during the fall and spring semesters. These events are designed for anyone who is considering attending LSTC and for those discerning a call to ministry. In addition to providing an opportunity to explore and experience the dynamics of seminary life, Seminary Sampler events connect prospective students with one another.

Seminary Sampler is a three-day event, Sunday afternoon through Tuesday afternoon, offered once in the fall and spring semesters. Participants are encouraged to attend the entire event. Spouses, partners, and family members are encouraged to attend with the prospective student to any/all sessions during the event.

Seminary Sampler Night is a four-hour event offered once in the fall and spring semesters during an evening weekday. Seminary Sampler Night is designed specifically for local prospective students who already live in the Chicago area and for those considering commuting to LSTC. Spouses, partners, and family members are encouraged to attend. Childcare is available.

Complimentary guest housing is available, as are travel stipends. All meals during Seminary Sampler events are provided. For more information about Seminary Sampler events or to register, visit www.lstc.edu or email admissions@lstc.edu.
LSTC offers curricula in the master of divinity, master of arts in theological studies, and master of arts in ministry programs focused on cultivating competencies for leadership in a public church. This curricular emphasis initiated in the 2014–15 academic year was made in consultation with students, alumni, bishops, pastors, board members, and congregational leaders who helped articulate the kind of leadership needed for deep engagement in cultural and congregational contexts today. Consonant with our Lutheran heritage, at LSTC we want to prepare a wide range of leaders who can offer the vision that God’s love is freely given for all, that Jesus’ message is a credible source of lasting life, and that the Spirit’s work reconciles and renews. We want to form leaders for a church that declares such hope and promise in a public way.
LEADERSHIP FOR A PUBLIC CHURCH

The LSTC Strategic Plan for 2014–2017 further articulates this vision for leadership needed today:

Preparing Leaders for a Public Church
At LSTC, we are unwilling to settle for a narrative of depletion or decline in religious life. Amidst the changes and challenges that faithful Christians face today, there is still a vast opportunity for people and communities of faith actively to declare the good news of mercy, hope, justice, and peace in a world that, from local to global, often knows little of this. As a place of learning and formation, LSTC exists to support our church in making such a witness.

Why this vision for a public church?
Our commitment is to serve and encourage a more “public church.” Aligned with our Lutheran heritage, LSTC longs for a church that follows the cross of Christ into every place God is found, joyful or sorrowful. A public church does not remain at a distance from the wounds of our world but instead fully shares that plight and brings an alternative word of lasting life.

We resist the caricature of church as uninformed or uninvolved. We want faith communities equipped for a more credible, gracious, and effective witness to the gospel in the many ambits of life they encounter. Amidst the several other languages that predominate today, like science, commerce, law, and entertainment, we seek a distinctively Christian discourse.

What kinds of leaders are needed?
Such a public church will not happen by accident. In a time of institutional mistrust, our church must explore the practices that can enable our evangelical witness to thrive. While this will surely happen in many different ways, it will mainly be set in motion through the leaders our church forms and the gifts and capacities they bear into unforeseen situations.

We affirm church leaders of many kinds, not simply ordained ones. We prepare visionary leaders who will in turn nurture the gifts of all of God's people to be more amply equipped to witness in public life. We look for those who embrace the risk, creativity, care, and persistence such leadership will require, a practical wisdom that is durable and adaptive.

How could LSTC make that happen?
Such leadership will also not happen by accident. Long committed to the intensive preparation of people for a variety of ministries, domestic and worldwide, LSTC is now distinctively poised to rethink and improve its diverse formation of leaders for a public church yet today. This plan represents the first move along that longer trajectory of our educational mission.

Our heritage is a key resource for our future, drawing from our enduring strengths to adapt to emerging needs. We bring a particular theological voice, faithful community life, great scholarly rigor, deep practical sensitivity, and resilient institutional history to the task of providing a rich space for leadership formation. We now wish to turn these gifts toward our future.
LSTC has always been re-formed by its students as well as its faculty, staff, and boards. Preston Fields is an ideal example of that.

During the Public Church I course that Fields took his first semester at LSTC, he realized that many students had been involved in social justice activities prior to seminary and were frustrated that they weren't out doing that work in the community. Fields came to LSTC after working as director of community engagement for Merriville College. He helped match students with community organizations and a partner to put that into the curriculum.

So he proposed a similar program of community service and reflection to complement LSTC's new Public Church curriculum. The Public Church Fellows Program quickly took shape and Fields was appointed as its coordinator. Five incoming students were chosen as the first Fellows, which became a self-maintaining program as Fields headed into his internship year.

"The academic aspect of the curriculum is good, but you can't just come to seminary and get lost in books. It's nice to have a scholarship where we're expected to do something. Public Church Fellows are enjoying the work. It is a way to help people with finances and allow them to stay involved in what they like to do," Fields said.

When he was searching for the right seminary to attend, Fields applied to two divinity schools and two seminaries. He chose LSTC because it gave him access to the academic resources divinity schools have while being rooted in the Lutheran tradition.
Features of the Revised MDiv, MATS, and MAM Programs

The revised MDiv, MATS, and MAM curricula are structured around the interplay between contextual engagement and critical reflection on scripture and historical and theological tradition, rather than around the academic disciplines themselves. The goal is to break the academic disciplines out of their silos so that creative collaboration, cross-fertilization, and integration can flourish.

The MDiv, MATS, and MAM programs at LSTC take each student’s strengths, experiences, and unique interests as a starting point, and then further equips them with the skills, knowledge, and experiences they need to develop competencies in leadership for a public church.

Students are encouraged to view seminary as a formative stage of their lifelong journey of learning and intentional cultivation of the skills, aptitudes, and experiences needed for leadership for a public church in a variety of evolving contexts today.

Designing each student’s unique program of study begins with a self-inventory of past education and experiences, as well as of vocational objectives and vision during orientation week. Ongoing design and adjustment continues with regular advising sessions before registration each semester. Required orienting courses and additional pathway courses lead toward competency in particular areas. These competencies are further developed and demonstrated through advanced-level courses and field education (depending on degree).

Features of LSTC’s new MDiv, MATS, and MAM curricula include:
- 5–9 required orienting courses (number depending on degree) providing foundation and framework
- Competency-based, with multiple pathways toward completion
- Holistic approach to theological education that is rigorous, dialogical, and experiential
- Action-reflection pedagogy that foregrounds learning in context
- Interdisciplinary and integrative in design and instruction of courses
- Hundreds of courses available through the ACTS consortium
- Chicago as your classroom

The five main areas of competencies around which the curriculum is organized are:
- Spiritual Formation: an ample sense of human personhood in community that evidences the spirit’s grounding and guidance.
  - Competency in spiritual formation means that students are able to discern the ways in which God is at work in people's lives and in the world and provide guidance for communal participation in the renewing activity of the Spirit in local contexts.
• Religious Heritage: drawing the wisdom of our forebears in the faith (in scripture and in history and theology) into active engagement with emerging challenges.
  – Competency in religious heritage in scripture and in history and theology means that students are able to foster a communal ethos of learning and teaching, preaching, and facilitating conversations that creatively relate the Biblical and foundational theological texts, traditions, and practices of the Christian faith to exigent questions and issues in contemporary contexts.

  Note: Religious Heritage includes two competency areas:
  - Religious Heritage I: Scripture
  - Religious Heritage II: History and Theology

• Ministerial Leadership: oversight in and stewardship of communities that discerns and develops the gifts of all disciples.
  – Competency in ministerial leadership means that students are able to steward the gifts and resources of the people of God in the service of the common good as well as articulate and model faithful embodiment of the gospel in ways that are culturally sensitive and inclusive.

• Cultural Context: within and around each of these other competencies, the ability to know, interpret, and affect particular situations, values, and meanings.
  – Competency in cultural context means that students are able to think contextually, be culturally sensitive, and creatively engage a pluralistic world in interpreting the message of the gospel.

Effective formation of leadership for a public church in this model will not result from completion of a list of courses but from assessment in light of these competencies that guide the entire curriculum.
Elise Anderson
MDiv, Public Church Fellow

Elise Anderson has been called to a number of vocations. She is an athletic trainer with a master’s in sports medicine. She has taught high school and worked in the health care system in South Africa as part of Young Adults in Global Mission. Now she is doing the one thing she never thought she would do: following a call to be a pastor.

“I would laugh at people who asked if I was going to be a pastor,” Anderson said. It was a natural question for them to ask. Both of her parents are pastors.

On Reformation Sunday in 2012, that changed. “I heard a little voice in my head saying, ‘You should go to seminary.’ Usually I’m sure about my decisions and make them quickly. When it came to seminary, I thought about it for a long time,” she said.

The “light went off” for Anderson when she learned about LSTC’s dual degree with Valparaiso University in health care administration. It might combine several of her vocations.

When Anderson came to an LSTC Seminary Sampler, she learned about the Public Church Fellows Program and she immediately wanted to be part of it. Public Church Fellows spend seven hours a week working with a neighborhood nonprofit organization. They receive a stipend an take time to reflect on their experiences with other fellows.

Anderson likes the practical aspect of the work she does with the Hyde Park Transitional Housing Project (HPTHP). “Churches talk a lot about how to reach out to community. My goal and hope for Public Church Fellows is to give people communities outside of LSTC and bring people’s head out of the books.”
Public Church Fellows

LSTC’s Public Church Fellows program combines academics with community service, nonprofit partner mentorship, and spiritual reflection. Each Public Church Fellow works side by side with community partners to serve in a local service agency or other context for up to seven hours each week. Fellows gather together monthly to reflect on and share how their experience impacts their academic coursework and spiritual formation.

Public Church Fellows receive a monthly stipend during the academic year in support of their work.

Continuing in the Previous MDiv, MATS, and MAM Programs

Students who entered the MDiv, MATS, and MAM programs prior to 2014–15 continue under the previous curriculum in place at the time of admission. For the requirements of the previous MDiv, MATS, and MAM curricula, see the 2012–14 catalog or an earlier catalog dating from the year of admission. These earlier catalogs will remain available at LSTCNet.

A list of courses in the new curriculum that serve as equivalents for requirements in the previous curricula will be made available prior to registration each semester. LSTC faculty and administrators will work closely with students who entered under the previous curricula until all of these students have graduated.

MDiv with Bexley Seabury Federation toward Ordination in the Episcopal Church

LSTC offers an MDiv program in cooperation with the Bexley Seabury Federation for students preparing for ordination in the Episcopal Church. Students follow the requirements of the LSTC MDiv program, substituting and supplementing certain courses to provide the necessary denominational preparation. For details concerning required courses through the Bexley Seabury Federation in Anglican history, liturgy, spirituality, and polity, please consult the LSTC director of the MDiv program or the academic dean.
“I got involved in community organizing and Augustana Lutheran church simultaneously,” Toby Chow says.

A philosophy PhD. candidate at the University of Chicago (all but dissertation), Chow started going to meetings of Southsiders Organized for Unity and Liberation (SOUL). He liked what he experienced.

“They have a method to be effective. I was impressed that SOUL and other groups on the southside were trying to get an agreement from Wal-Mart to pay a livable wage and to hire from the community where they planned to build a new store. I’d always heard the Wal-Mart is a tough opponent.”

Community organizers pushed Chow to speak at public meetings. “I never would have done that before,” he says.

The work also exposed him to disparities that are difficult to see. “As I got involved in organizing I saw disinvestment and social dislocation. I also had to go to City Hall and Springfield and I saw how out of touch people in power are...It’s tough to see that up close. Increasingly, I saw Scripture and worship as a place to fight the despair and cynicism that can well up when you encounter the powerful and malevolent systems of our society.”

Chow is in the MDiv program, but right now he’s not sure what the future holds. “I’m wondering if there is a confluence of the ELCA’s need for diversity, community organizing, and my call to ministry.”

Chow received a Hope Scholarship designed for students who are the first in their family to be an ELCA pastor.
Part-time, Commuter, International, and Transfer Students

Part-time and Commuter Students
The seminary welcomes part-time and commuter students and seeks to offer evening and block courses to accommodate their schedules. Online courses through LSTC and partner institutions further increase flexibility for part-time and commuter students. Since masters level study is rigorous and demands significant amounts of time for all students, part-time and commuter students are encouraged to take advantage of particular spaces at LSTC (the LRWC, study areas at JKM, and the commuter lounge) to find havens for computer access, quiet reading and interactive study groups. Early evening worship opportunities and community events are also important aspects of seminary learning, some of which are planned especially with commuter students in mind.

International Students
International students with F-1 or J-1 status must study on a full-time basis because of U.S. government regulations.

Transfer Students
Students transferring to LSTC from other seminaries may receive credit for some or all of their previous work. For more information about receiving transfer credit, see page 51.
Master of Divinity

The master of divinity degree (MDiv) at LSTC in public church leadership prepares persons for ordained ministry and for pastoral and religious leadership in congregations and other settings.

Requirements of the MDiv Program
Requirements for the master of divinity degree include successful completion of:

- 9 required orienting courses (300-level) in five competency areas
- 18 additional pathway (400-level) and advanced (500- and 600-level) courses, for a total of 27 courses
- Minimum of 5 advanced courses (500- or 600-level) to deepen and demonstrate competency in five areas
- 400 hours (1 unit) of clinical pastoral education (CPE)
- For students preparing for ordination in the ELCA, completion of a 12-month internship in the third or fourth year of study. (Candidates for Word and Service who are in the MDiv program complete an internship requirement designed for the Word and Service Roster.)

Length of the MDiv
Academic coursework for the MDiv, consisting of 27 courses (9 per year with 4 per semester and one during the January term or Maymester) and clinical pastoral education (CPE), may be completed in three years plus one summer of CPE.

For full-time students preparing for ordained ministry in the ELCA, the MDiv is designed to be completed in four years. The first two years focus on building a strong foundation in the five competencies listed above, through eight required orienting courses along with additional pathway and advanced courses. The third year is spent on internship, engaged in full-time ministry. The final year is spent on campus integrating the internship experience through a post-internship course on public church as well as additional academic study with the aim of further developing and demonstrating needed competencies.

LSTC welcomes commuter and part-time students, and works with them to develop a course of study that takes into account their complex schedules and life commitments.

Ecumenical MDiv Program
LSTC welcomes MDiv students from other denominations. Students will be assisted to do the Ministry in Context fieldwork assignment in their own denomination. The 12-month internship is waived or adjusted to meet a student’s particular denominational requirements.
Outline of the MDiv Year by Year

Year One
During the first year of the MDiv program, development of competencies for leadership begins with four required orienting courses:

- Public Church I
- Ministerial Leadership I
- Religious Heritage I: Scripture I: Jesus within Judaism
- Religious Heritage II: History and Theology I

Spiritual formation modules are integrated into orienting courses.

Full-time students take five additional pathway courses (400-level) towards competency in particular areas during the first year. Students with strong academic backgrounds or extensive practical experience may request permission to move immediately to advanced-level courses (500- or 600-level), where they may continue to develop and demonstrate competency in particular areas.

Summer between Year One and Year Two
Generally students take 400 hours (one unit) of CPE during the summer after their first year at seminary.

Year Two
During the second year of the MDiv program, students continue to develop competencies with a second set of four required orienting courses:

- Ministerial Leadership II
- Religious Heritage I: Scripture II
- Religious Heritage II: History and Theology II
- Spiritual Formation I

Full-time students again take five additional pathway courses (400-level) towards competency in particular areas during the second year, or when appropriate request permission to take advanced-level courses (500- or 600-level), where they may continue to develop and demonstrate competency in particular areas.

Year Three
During the third year, most MDiv students preparing for ordination in the ELCA complete a 12-month internship. Candidates preparing for word and service roster who are in the MDiv program complete an internship requirement designed to prepare them for their particular ministry. Petitions for final year internships by students with special circumstances are given sympathetic consideration.

Year Four
During the final year of the MDiv program, most students take their remaining nine courses, integrating their internship experience and further developing and demonstrating competency in particular areas, including:

- Public Church II
Amy Asendorf
MDiv, Public Church Fellow

When she was in junior high school, Amy Asendorf’s father entered seminary. “I got to see him go through that process, and it inspired me,” she said. It got her thinking about becoming a pastor herself.

Asendorf was affirmed in her own call by the campus ministry pastor at Muhlenberg College. Her involvement in campus ministry and work at a Lutheran Summer Camp helped her gain a sense of “outward call” to add to her growing sense of “inward call.”

Instead of jumping right into seminary, Asendorf spent her first year after college teaching English in France followed by a year with Lutheran Volunteer Corps in Baltimore City, Md.

One of the things that drew her to LSTC was the Public Church Fellows Program, which combines study, service, and reflection. As part of the program, Asendorf spends approximately seven hours a week volunteering with the Hyde Park Food Bank housed at a church two blocks away from LSTC’s campus. People who live in the three zip codes closest to the church may come to the food bank once a month to choose the food they want. “They can take as much as they want or need,” she said.

Asendorf is also part of the Seminarians for Justice group and has participated in actions, demonstrations and phone banks. “I’m seeking a balance between service and systemic change. Both are needed. The church is not in danger of forgetting service any time soon. But the church could get more involved with systemic changes. It’s interesting to be part of both of these things,” she said.
Full time students take eight additional courses, making sure that a minimum of five courses during their seminary education have been taken at the advanced level (500- or 600-level), one in each of these competency areas:

- Spiritual Formation
- Religious Heritage I: Scripture
- Religious Heritage II: History and Theology
- Ministerial Leadership
- Cultural Context

Students work with their academic advisors and the LSTC advising team to create a schedule of courses that acknowledges where they are upon admission and propels them toward development of competencies for leadership in a public church in various contexts.

Courses may be taken in any order and without prerequisite except where noted. MDiv students preparing for internship should take the first eight required orienting courses (all except for Public Church II, which is intended to be taken following internship or during the final year) in the first two years, before internship begins.

Field Work

Clinical Pastoral Education

In this supervised experience of pastoral ministry, students undertake direct ministry to people, report and evaluate these experiences, and receive feedback from peers and supervisors in the context of a small-group setting. Master of divinity students usually take clinical pastoral education following the first year of study. The Field Education Office assists students to find placement in one of the more than 300 centers throughout the United States. An urban ministry setting is available through the Urban CPE Program.

Clinical pastoral education is open to students in any degree program.

Internship

A distinctive feature of Lutheran theological education for candidates for ordained ministry is a 12-month internship, usually taken in the student's third year of a four-year program. The goals of the internship experience are to:

- Help students fine-tune the discernment of their call by identifying strengths and weaknesses of their preparation
- Explore various models and styles of doing ministry
- Determine what should be emphasized in the final year of study

Students on internship are engaged in as wide an experience of pastoral ministry as can be arranged. The seminary's program ensures that interns receive the opportunity to serve and learn in the nine areas which the ELCA Constitution designates as primary functions of congregational ministry: worship, education, preaching, pastoral care, social ministry, evangelism, stewardship, ecumenism, and administration. Specific projects designed to cover significant topics not dealt with elsewhere in the curriculum are included.
All candidates for internships also participate in two workshops on ministry before the internship year and upon return to campus engage in a senior interview in which students reflect with faculty members on the learning and experience gained on internship and prepare for the final stages of the process that leads to graduation and ordination.

Master of divinity students preparing for internship should complete CPE and eight of the required orienting courses (all except for Public Church II, which is intended to be taken following internship or during the final year) before internship begins. Exceptions may be petitioned.

For MDiv students who are preparing for the Word and Service Roster, the Word and Service internship requirement substitutes for the 12-month internship that focuses on preparation for ordained ministry.

The internship program is open to any student who wishes to apply. The Field Education Office will work with students from other denominations who are seeking to meet their denomination’s field study requirements.

Louis Tillman
MDiv

Although he’s still an MDiv student, Louis Tillman has the schedule of a CEO. In addition to taking classes full-time, Tillman works part-time, is involved in coaching and mentoring, and serves on several boards.

Louis is a first-generation Lutheran who grew up in Atlanta, Ga. Although he thought he was “done with church” after he was confirmed, his older sister got him to volunteer at the ELCA’s Youth Gathering in Atlanta when he was 15. “It really opened my eyes. I was shocked by the demographics,” Louis says. “I wondered, ‘Why are there not a lot of people who look like me?’”

Instead of walking away from the ELCA, Louis got more involved—serving on the Lutheran Youth Organization board, being part of the ELCA’s African Descent Association, and being a voting member at the 2009 Churchwide Assembly.

Louis is the fifth recipient of the Bridges Scholarship, which was established at Carthage College and LSTC to provide full-tuition scholarships for persons of color who have gifts for ministry and plan to attend seminary. At Carthage, he did a double major in business administration and public relations. He hopes to earn a dual degree while at LSTC—an MDiv and an MBA through Valparaiso University’s program.

“I see myself as a coach and a mentor to those who are considered to be an underdog. I specifically make it my duty and goal to reach out to those in many different environments who have great potential and leadership qualities, but are voiceless. I love to identify the various skill sets in these individuals and to help in developing them as leaders of our church. I believe that they are the ones who will soon be taking the reins and reforming the church in many new and innovative ways. I am a servant and not a savior.”

Master of Arts in Theological Studies

The master of arts in theological studies degree (MATS) is the first theological degree for students interested in gaining a general theological education or for students interested primarily in the academic study of theology. The term “theological studies” refers to the whole spectrum of offerings in the curriculum.

The two-year MATS program consists of 16 courses. The required orienting courses are foundational in nature, while the pathway and advanced electives leading to competencies allow for concentrated work in any chosen field in the curriculum or for a more generalist approach to theological study.

Students may develop a concentration in a particular competency area such as Scripture or History and Theology, or in a more focused area of studies, e.g., systematic theology, ethics, etc. Students may also identify an area of study in which a variety of disciplines may contribute to comprehensive knowledge of that particular subject area. For example, students who choose to concentrate in African American Studies may take context-specific courses in ethics, theology, history, Bible, and ministry.

Due to LSTC’s participation in the Association of Chicago Theological Schools (ACTS), students may take advantage not only of the curricular resources of LSTC but also the extensive offerings of 10 other theological seminaries as well. A concentration requires six courses. Required orienting courses taken to fulfill basic MATS requirements may be counted toward that total. At least one of the courses for a concentration must be at the advanced 500 level or above.

In addition to the opportunities for focused theological study, LSTC has developed particular curricular emphases, which are faculty-approved integrative programs of study in a given field of inquiry. Students pursuing a curricular emphasis will be supervised by one or more faculty members within the faculty division which provides oversight of the program. LSTC’s present curricular emphases include biblical studies, environmental ministry, interfaith studies, religion and science, African descent, Hispanic ministry, Asian American, American Indian and Native Alaskan, and urban ministry. See pages 43–45 for a fuller description of these curricular emphases. The Masters Programs Manual provides a detailed account of the requirements of each emphasis.

Students with significant undergraduate work in Bible, church history, systematic theology, or another area may be able to move directly from the required orienting courses to advanced 500- or 600-level courses. All requirements for the degree must be completed within four years of admission into the program, although a petition for extension may be submitted.

Summative Evaluation

The MATS program requires the successful completion of a Summative Evaluation, which consists of the Summative Evaluation Seminar and a major research thesis paper of 30–40 pages that must be completed by the middle of the final semester of study. Students register in the fall for the Summative Evaluation Seminar which brings together MATS and MAM students working... on their Summative Evaluations for mutual support and peer enrichment, as well as regular faculty guidance. The Summative Evaluation Seminar and thesis earns one course credit.

As the son of a pastor, Sam Nelson decided that he would “take a break from church” while he attended California Lutheran University. But he and a friend attended the Sunday evening worship there. Another friend encouraged him to check out the Wednesday evening services and he started to go to those, too. Then Sam took a job helping with the Sunday evening service, and by his senior year he was in charge of the Wednesday service.

Sam debated with himself about whether to pursue a PhD in psychology or to go to seminary. Soon after he started an MA in psychology at American University in Washington, D.C., he figured out that, as his vocation, psychology is a “round peg in an oval hole. It fit, but it didn’t fill up all the spaces.”

There came a moment when Sam knew he would go to seminary. “It was Maundy Thursday, at a church in Washington, DC. I was returning to my pew after having my feet washed, and I had a sense of calm and completeness. I thought, ‘This is where I belong; what I need to be doing.’ That lasted for about a minute and then I was terrified. I started the process of talking with parents, friends, and family. They gave me the courage to try seminary.”

Now that he’s in the MDiv program at LSTC, Sam is at peace with the sense that the doubts are part of the process. “It’s evident that those questions never go away—and that’s okay.”

Still fascinated by psychology, Sam plans to earn a concentration in pastoral care as part of his MDiv studies.
Master of Arts in Ministry

The master of arts in ministry degree (MAM) enables students to pursue a first theological degree that prepares them for various ministries—in daily life and in leadership positions within congregations and communities, both nationally and internationally. Like the MATS program, the MAM program consists of a strong core of required orienting courses and also offers the opportunity for focused study in a particular ministry area.

The Master of Arts in Ministry grew out of LSTC’s commitment to assist students preparing for rostering in the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America and incorporates curricular expectations of the ELCA for Ministry of Word and Service. LSTC also welcomes ecumenical and interfaith students whose vocational goals make this degree preferable to the MATS.

Students may develop a concentration in a particular ministry discipline or identify a particular ministry interest that requires study in several disciplines. For example, students preparing to serve or strengthening an already existing ministry in an African American or Latino/a ministry community may take context-specific courses in ethics, theology, history, Bible, and ministry.

Due to LSTC’s participation in the Association of Chicago Theological Schools (ACTS), students may take advantage not only of the curricular resources of LSTC, but the extensive offerings of 10 other theological seminaries as well.

A concentration requires six courses. Courses taken to fulfill basic MAM requirements may be counted toward that total. At least four of the courses must be pathway (400-level) or advanced (500- or 600-level) courses, with a minimum of one advanced (500- or 600-level) course.

In addition to these opportunities for focused theological study, LSTC has developed particular curricular emphases, which are faculty-approved integrative programs of study in a given field of inquiry. Students pursuing a curricular emphasis will be supervised by one or more faculty members within the faculty division in which oversight of the program is lodged. LSTC’s present curricular emphases include biblical studies, environmental ministry, interfaith studies, religion and science, African descent, Hispanic ministry, Asian American, American Indian and Native Alaskan, and urban ministry. See pages 43–45 for a fuller description of these curricular emphases. The Masters Programs Manual provides a detailed account of the requirements of each emphasis.

Ecclesiastical curricular expectations have been incorporated into the MAM curriculum. Word and Service Roster candidates must complete an internship and a Ministry Project. The successful completion of the Ministry Project earns one academic credit and may fulfill the Summative Evaluation requirement of the MAM.

The two-year MAM program consists of 16 courses. All curricular requirements for the degree must be completed within four years of admission into the program, although a petition for extension may be submitted.

The required orienting courses in this degree program provide a broad base for ministry (Spiritual Formation, Bible, History, Theology, Public Church, Ministry, Ethics) and also address specific ecclesiastical requirements. The pathway and advanced courses allow for concentrated work in a particular ministry field or a broader exploration of any area(s) of the theological curriculum that students believe will strengthen their preparation for ministry. Candidates with significant undergraduate work in Bible, church history, or systematic theology may petition to substitute more advanced courses for the foundational courses listed below or apply for credit by examination for one or more foundational courses. CPE may be credited as an elective if it does not fulfill required field studies hours.

Summative Evaluation
The MAM program requires the successful completion of a Summative Evaluation, which consists of the Summative Evaluation Seminar and a ministry project or major research thesis paper of 25-40 pages that must be completed by the middle of the final semester of study. Students register in the fall for the Summative Evaluation Seminar, which brings together MAM and MATS students working on their Summative Evaluations for mutual support and peer enrichment, as well as regular faculty guidance. The specific topic of the project or thesis is determined by students in consultation with their first reader, and, if applicable, the director of field education, the academic advisor, and the director of the MA programs. The Summative Evaluation Seminar, along with the project or thesis, earns one course credit.

Field Studies
All master of arts in ministry students engage in 600 hours of supervised ministry practice. ELCA candidates preparing for the Word and Service Roster are required to complete a ministry project (200 hours) in addition to the 600 hours. The ministry project may be used toward the fulfillment of LSTC's Summative Evaluation requirement. Students are encouraged to consult the field education staff during their first semester of studies about the kind of fieldwork best suited to their vocational aims. Depending on the kind of ministry experience sought, there are many options, including one or more units of CPE; Ministerial Leadership II/Ministry in Context (which may be used for field placement rather than a credit course); or supervised ministry in another area of interest. Students are expected to be proactive in identifying their purpose for the degree.

Course of Studies
Required Courses:
- Public Church I
- Scripture I or II
- History and Theology I or II
- Ministerial Leadership I or II
- Spiritual Formation I
• Grace Incarnate–Lutheran Confessions (ecumenical students may substitute a course in the theological heritage of their particular denomination or a polity course, if required by their judicatory)

• Ethics Course

• Summative Evaluation Seminar and paper or project

• Field Studies (may receive course credit if the written report does not fulfill required Summative Evaluation)

Students take eight additional pathway (400-level), competency (500-level), or advanced (600-level) courses, with a minimum of one course taken at the competency (500) or advanced (600) level in a selected area for a total of 16 courses.

ELCA Preparation for Lay Roster (Deacons)

Students intending to serve as deacons in the ELCA should establish a relationship with their synodical candidacy committee. An endorsement and approval process similar to that for ordained ministry, though abbreviated because of the shorter program, is available for MAM students. The director of the MA programs and the coordinator of candidacy are available to advise students about the candidacy process. Since ELCA candidacy requirements are currently being revised, LSTC faculty and administrators will work closely with students to make sure their program of studies meets all denominational requirements. Students with other denominational or religious affiliations may have additional field education requirements and expectations which will need to be worked out in conversation with their denominational or religious bodies.
Allison Bengfort
MDiv/Dual degree

Allison Bengfort knew that she wanted to pursue a master’s degree in social work, but she wasn't sure where. While visiting various schools, she sat in on a class through LSTC and the University of Chicago's dual degree program. During the class, she thought, “I have to go here.” After completing two years of this program, she’s happy with her choice.

Allison is from Davenport, Iowa. She has a bachelor's degree in religion from St. Olaf College in Northfield, Minn. Before entering the dual degree program, she worked for two years as a caseworker in Minneapolis, Minn.

The dual degree program allows students to earn an MDiv, MATS, or MAM at LSTC while concurrently earning an AM in social work (MSW equivalent) from the University of Chicago. The program integrates social work and theology while allowing students to finish both degrees at an accelerated pace. Allison is earning an MDiv at LSTC in addition to her AM in social work. She plans to graduate in 2017.

LSTC’s ecumenical focus is another factor that attracted Allison to the dual degree program. She has been involved in courses and programs at other seminaries in the area, and these experiences have enhanced her education.

Allison feels comfortable navigating her two interrelated degree programs. “You have to stay on top of the requirements for each program,” she said. “The best guides for planning your schedule are other students in the dual program.”

Allison hopes to become a pastor at a church with a focus on social justice work. With both of her degrees, she will be uniquely equipped to serve others.
MATS and MAM Program Options

Credit for Previous Study
Master of arts in theological studies and MAM candidates may petition to gain credit by examination for any of the core course requirements. They may also petition to substitute a more advanced course for the core course if prior coursework has been successfully completed (B or higher) that covers the basic material of the core course.

Cross-Registration
The seminary encourages its students to make use of the rich variety of courses offered in other Chicago area seminaries. Information about these offerings is available through the ACTS online catalog accessible at www.lstc.edu. The registrar publishes a list of courses that are suitable for substitution of core requirements each year.

Clinical Pastoral Education (CPE)
Both MATS and MAM candidates may receive one elective credit for CPE. However, MAM students using CPE to fulfill the field studies requirement may not receive an elective credit for CPE.

Advanced Standing with Credit
International students who enroll at LSTC for a full academic year may earn the MATS degree and Lutheran year students may earn either the MAM or the MATS degree, provided that they are assigned sufficient advanced standing on the basis of previous master's level theological study. Students must complete at least eight courses at LSTC, including the Summative Evaluation, in order to qualify for the MATS or the MAM degree. All students eligible for advanced standing may contact the Director of MA programs, who reviews the relevant academic records and determines what advanced standing may be granted.

Dual Degree Program
In consultation with the University of Chicago School of Social Service Administration, LSTC offers a coordinated program of studies. Students may earn the MATS or MAM degree from LSTC and the AM degree from the University of Chicago (the equivalent to a master of social work degree). For more information, see page 46.
Student Profile

Vickie Johnson (2015, TEEM)
MDiv

Vickie Johnson is pastor at St. Thomas Lutheran Church in Chicago, so why is she in the master of divinity program?

Johnson and her husband, Marrion Johnson Sr., were co-pastors of a nondenominational church in Chicago's South Shore neighborhood for 27 years. Several years ago they guided the congregation through a process of joining the ELCA.

To do this, Johnson and her husband entered the ELCA's Theological Education for Emerging Ministries program (TEEM). It helps prepare women and men, particularly those with ministry experience in specific contexts such as communities of color, for ordained ministry in the ELCA. Students in this program are eligible for an abbreviated program of study, which builds on their established careers as pastors. She completed the program in 2015 but decided to continue in the MDiv program.

Johnson said, “It gives me a better sense of the congregation. Some of the things I'm learning in classes are things I'm experiencing in the congregation.”

St. Thomas is a good fit for Pastor Johnson. “They have always been involved in social justice. Now they want to involve more youth in the church. It’s a very healthy congregation that has been very receptive to my ideas and guiding.”
Educational Options for MDiv, MATS, and MAM Students

Emphases and Concentrations
LSTC’s curriculum allows freedom and flexibility for students in the MDiv, MATS, and MAM programs to develop their own pathways toward essential competencies, as well as to concentrate their study in areas of personal interests. With the resources and hundreds of courses in the ACTS Consortium, and January term opportunities with several ELCA seminaries, LSTC students are able to develop the skills they need for specific ministries.

Emphases
A curricular emphasis enables MDiv, MATS, and MAM students to acquire knowledge and expertise in an area of study that goes beyond the basics of a given area in the core curriculum and allows students to gain confidence and discipline in a designated scholarly area.

LSTC’s long-held strengths and commitments in the areas of biblical studies, urban ministry, interfaith studies, religion and science, culture-specific, and environmental ministry have led faculty members to create emphases in these areas. Detailed information on all these emphases may be found in the LSTC Student Handbook.

Upon successful completion of an emphasis, the student receives a certificate from LSTC and a notation is made on the student’s transcript.

Concentrations
MDiv, MATS, and MAM candidates may develop an area of concentration in any discipline represented by the LSTC faculty. The professor or professors in a specific field determine which courses are essential for a concentration in that field and identify pertinent related courses. At least four of the courses must be electives at the 400 level or above.

African Descent, Hispanic/Latino/a, Asian American/Pacific Islander, American Indian/Native Alaskan Emphases
In preparation for ministry with the African Descent, Latino/Latina, American Indian/Alaska Native, or Asian American/Pacific Islander communities, LSTC offers MDiv, MATS, and MAM candidates the opportunity to receive additional course work in theology as it pertains to these ethnic communities. Field Education/Practicum is done within the respective congregations/agencies of color, giving the students practical ministry experience. To further develop their understanding of doing ministry and forming valuable networking opportunities, students are encouraged to participate in conferences and workshops. A final reflection essay will be required to show an integration of this emphasis in the constructive theological formation of the candidates.

For more information, contact Dr. Cheryl S. Pero, director of the Albert “Pete” Pero Jr. Multicultural Center at cpero@lstc.edu.
MDIV, MATS, AND MAM OPTIONS

Biblical Studies Emphasis
Students who choose the biblical studies emphasis gain the tools, confidence, and discipline to make Bible study a lifelong activity. Components of the emphasis are: course requirements and a senior project. Students should seek classes and other opportunities to use Hebrew and Greek.

For more information, contact Dr. Klaus-Peter Adam, professor of Old Testament, at kpadam@lstc.edu or Dr. Ray Pickett, professor of New Testament at rpickett@lstc.edu; Fall 2016: Dr. Barbara Rossing, professor of New Testament brossing@lstc.edu.

Environmental Ministry Emphasis
This curricular emphasis enables MDiv, MATS, and MAM students to gain the knowledge and experience to address environmental issues from a theological and a practical perspective in the congregation and other ministry settings. The environmental ministry emphasis requires that students work together in a covenant group on projects with LSTC’s Green Zone to acquire training for work in the parish or community. Course work, field components, and a senior project are the other emphasis requirements.

For more information, contact Dr. Barbara Rosing, professor of New Testament, at brossing@lstc.edu or Dr. Ben Stewart, Gordon A. Braatz Associate Professor of Worship, at bstewart@lstc.edu.

Interfaith Emphasis
LSTC has a long history of engagement in interfaith relations, including, since 2006, an endowed professorship of Christian-Muslim Studies and Interfaith Relations, working with a team of colleagues in the area, as well as A Center of Christian-Muslim Engagement for Peace and Justice. LSTC students have opportunities to take courses in interfaith relations, e.g., in classrooms with Christian and Muslim professors and students, and to participate in a wide range of interfaith activities, on campus and off. The interfaith emphasis is designed to provide guidance and community for students who would like to deepen their knowledge and experience in this area by taking advantage of opportunities offered by the rich religious diversity of Greater Chicago.

For more information, contact Dr. Mark Swanson, Harold S. Vogelaar Professor of Christian-Muslim Studies and Interfaith Relations, at mswanson@lstc.edu.

Religion and Science Emphasis
This curricular emphasis enables MDiv, MATS, and MAM students to establish competency in various aspects of the dialogue between theology and science. It equips students to participate in public dialogue about the significance and impact of science, technology and religion on their own society as well as in a global perspective. It includes course requirements, regular participation in religion and science activities, a field component, and a senior project.

For more information, contact Dr. Lea Schweitz, associate professor of systematic theology/religion and science and director of the Zygon Center for Religion and Science at lschweitz@lstc.edu.

Urban Ministry Emphasis
Students who choose the urban ministry emphasis will develop skills for urban ministry in such areas as social analysis, worship, evangelism, stewardship, teaching, pastoral care, preaching, community organizing, managing a small congregation, developing ministry opportunities, building relationships with community organizations and agencies, leadership styles, and self/family care. Through courses, Ministry in Context and internship sites, workshops, and networking, students will develop a sense of vocation about urban ministry, become culturally appropriate leaders, and be able to work collaboratively with community organizations and agencies.

For more information, contact Dr. Richard J. Perry Jr., professor of church and society and urban ministry at rperry@lstc.edu.
MDIV, MATS, AND MAM OPTIONS

Dual Degree Program
In cooperation with the University of Chicago School of Social Service Administration, LSTC offers a coordinated program of studies. Students earn the MDiv, MATS, or MAM degree from LSTC and the AM degree from the University of Chicago (the equivalent to a master of social work degree).

Each school accepts credit for as many as five courses taken by students at the other school as well as jointly-approved clinical pastoral education and second-year field placements. These provisions make it possible for students to complete the MDiv and AM in five years rather than the six that would normally be required. Students combining the MAM or MATS and AM degree may complete the two degrees in three years instead of four years. Students have the opportunity to interrelate the two fields during the entire period of study.

Dual degree students normally apply for university admission during their first year of seminary studies. The Office of Admissions assists interested students, in consultation with the director of the degree program and the director of field education.

Studies in Race, Culture, and Ethnicity

The Albert “Pete” Pero Jr. Multicultural Center
The purpose of the Pero Multicultural Center is to cultivate a multicultural educational environment for all students at LSTC where the recruitment and preparation of leaders from African Descent, Arab–Middle Eastern, American Indian/Alaska Native, Asian/Pacific Islander, and Latino/Latina communities leads to a fulfilling theological education and professional leadership experience. The center assists LSTC to continue long-established initiatives and to develop new initiatives pertaining to multicultural competency.

Latino/Latina Studies
Students committed to serving effectively in Latino/Latina communities will find vital resources at LSTC and the surrounding ACTS schools. Courses taught in Spanish, or bi-lingually in Spanish and English, fulfill required or elective course requirements in the MATS, MAM, and MDiv programs. LSTC also offers opportunities for Ministry in Context, clinical pastoral education (CPE), and internship placements in Latino/Latina settings.

LSTC is a partner seminary in the national Hispanic Summer Program, inaugurated by Dr. Justo L. González. The Hispanic Summer Program is the only place where Hispanic seminarians regularly come together for an ecumenical educational experience that deals with the issues and experiences of Hispanics and their churches. The most distinguished Hispanic and Latino/Latina ecumenical faculty members in the US teach in this program.

The seminary also has close ties with the José David Rodríguez Center for Pastoral and Theological Studies in the Caribbean Synod, which is related to the Evangelical Seminary in San Juan, Puerto Rico. LSTC students may participate in the course offerings and field education opportunities of the center.
Original works of Lutheran Latino/Latina scholars have been published by the initiative of the Latino/Latina Studies Program at LSTC. Some of these books are the collective product of various sponsoring groups and institutions. The lectures and books are available through the Pero Multicultural Center at mc@lstc.edu.

The seminary also provides faculty support for the Seminario Luterano de Augsburgo in Mexico City and, with Wartburg Theological Seminary, supports the Lutheran Seminary Program in the Southwest.

A number of Latino/Latina scholars teach courses to meet the curricular needs of students in the MDiv, MATS, and MAM programs. Cross-registration opportunities within ACTS provide further resources, including significant Hispanic ministry programs conducted by the nearby Catholic Theological Union, and Garrett–Evangelical Theological Seminary in Evanston.

LSTC’s master of theology and doctor of philosophy degree programs have become a major center for training Spanish-speaking scholars for service throughout North and South America. Advanced PhD Latinx students at LSTC have served as directors and teachers in the Metropolitan Chicago Synod’s Diakonía Program for the formation of Latinx diaconal ministers who serve in Chicago Lutheran congregations with Latinx Ministries.

African-American Studies
LSTC’s location provides excellent resources to prepare students for ministry in the African American community and to introduce the student body as a whole to the African American religious and theological experience. Many of Chicago’s prominent African American religious, political, and business institutions are located near the seminary. Leaders in the African American community are available for discussion and dialogue and occasionally serve as auxiliary faculty persons. African American Lutheran pastors give of their time to mentor LSTC students interested in African American ministry and theology. Some courses at the seminary and in ACTS include field trips to African American congregations, to communities throughout the Chicago area, and to various organizations. Field education and internship opportunities are available in African American congregations.

African American professors at the seminary regularly offer courses in African American Bible, religion, theology, and ethics.

Students may cross-register for courses offered at ACTS schools that will equip them to better serve in the African American community. These courses, which sometimes may be substituted for a required course at the seminary, are regularly offered by world-famous African and African American scholars and faculty members. Through a coordinated effort by African and African American professors of ACTS seminaries and the Divinity School of the University of Chicago, special lectures and programs are made available to students.

Women’s Studies
Chicago is a center of feminist/womanist scholarship and women of diverse social and ethnic perspectives have found this city to be an enriching and challenging place to do their work. LSTC students who wish to focus on issues of women and ministry may take courses with women scholars at any of the 11 seminaries in the Association of Chicago Theological Schools (ACTS) consortium.

The required courses of the LSTC curriculum also incorporate women’s perspectives and concerns. Core and elective courses, conferences and discussions address social issues of particular concern to women (e.g., sexual abuse, domestic violence, the development of women’s voices and leadership, the interpretation of scriptural texts that are hurtful to women, and God imagery in public worship). A particular specialty at LSTC is womanist theology and ethics.

The Urban CPE Consortium, Inc., includes sites at which students may focus especially on women’s strengths, suffering, and pressing issues.

Travel Seminars and Exchange Programs

The January Term offers many opportunities for travel, both within and outside the United States. Students may enroll in travel seminars sponsored by any of the ACTS Schools (see www.actschicago.org) or in one of the J-Term travel seminars sponsored by the ELCA seminaries.

LSTC participates in international exchange programs with partner institutions overseas and collaborates with other ELCA seminaries and Lutheran bodies (such as the Lutheran World Federation) in assisting students who desire to study and learn in another country. Such exchanges do not normally take place until the second year of study or later. Early planning is essential since normally only one place is reserved for LSTC students at these institutions and often the exchange will not take place unless LSTC and the cooperating institution each have a student eligible to participate in the program. Students who desire to study overseas should consult with their advisor and the academic dean.

Students may also apply for an overseas internship through the ELCA’s Horizon Internship Program.

LSTC, the network of ELCA seminaries, and other Chicago seminaries provide opportunities for international study and travel for US students because they recognize that:

- Creative theologies and educational programs being developed outside the United States demonstrate how the gospel can be contextualized in diverse situations.
- Seeing the United States from another point of view provides new eyes for the mission in the U.S. and new sensitivity to the positive and negative roles this country plays around the world.
- The global church abounds with fresh understandings of worship, music, and evangelism, and it has developed diverse ministries, such as catechists and evangelists, to broaden students’ understanding of the office of ministry.
- We live in a pluralistic world in which other religions and ideologies encounter the gospel and offer it a striking challenge.
- Studying for the ministry with and among students in other countries will enhance collegiality in ministry and deepen ideas about piety, faith, ethics, and spirituality.
Lutheran Seminary Program in the Southwest (LSPS)
LSTC and Wartburg Theological Seminary in Dubuque, Iowa, share responsibility for the Lutheran Seminary Program in the Southwest, located in Austin, Texas. LSPS is known for its unique cultural and linguistic contributions to theological education. LSTC students may take Spanish intensives and summer courses in Hispanic ministry for credit toward their LSTC degree. Through its Theological Education for Emerging Ministries (TEEM) Program, LSPS helps students develop skills and sensitivity needed for ministry among people of an Hispanic cultural background. Its particular areas of emphasis include ethnic specific ministry, inner city and rural ministry, renewal of congregations in decline, and innovative mission starts. For more detailed information about LSPS visit www.lsps.edu.

Rural Ministry
LSTC seeks to form visionary leaders for the ministry of the whole church. Its urban location lends a unique character to its work in the field of rural, town and country, and suburban ministry.

Chicago is recognized throughout North America and around the world as the center of a vast network of international agribusiness concerns and activities. The Chicago Board of Trade, several farm implement manufacturing corporations, and a variety of reporting and forecasting agencies make Chicago a center of planning for and influence upon the agricultural sector. Thus the dynamics of the city and of rural America are closely interrelated and interdependent.

Each year, the seminary offers a rural ministry immersion course, a travel seminar in January or May which draws on the expertise both of noted rural analysts and of pastors and lay leaders carrying on dynamic rural ministries in the Midwest. This course has been developed by rural ministry leaders from Midwest synods in collaboration with LSTC faculty partners. It provides opportunities for seminarians to live in a rural area and to participate in the activities of rural congregations and communities.
Admission to the MDiv, MATS, and MAM Programs

The Lutheran School of Theology at Chicago admits qualified students without regard to race, color, national and ethnic origin, age, gender, sexual orientation, gender identity, marital or veteran’s status, physical ability and social class.

The Admissions Office processes applications to the master of divinity, master of arts in ministry, and master of arts in theological studies programs, in addition to those individuals seeking to affiliate with LSTC. Anyone interested in these programs may contact the Admissions Office at 773.256.0727 or admissions@lstc.edu. Application instructions and documents are available at www.lstc.edu.

Pre-Seminary Study

Students enter seminary today with a wide variety of backgrounds. The Association of Theological Schools (ATS) outlines areas of study which LSTC agrees may provide a good foundation for preparation for theological studies: English language and literature; history, including non-western cultures as well as European and American cultures; philosophy; natural sciences; social sciences, including psychology, sociology and anthropology; biblical and modern languages; religion; and the fine arts and music. Students are also encouraged to take Greek and/or Biblical Hebrew at the undergraduate level.

Requirements for Acceptance

Applicants are reminded of the nature and character of the seminary as an institution established by the church for the preparation of pastors and other professional workers. Consideration for acceptance includes not only the applicant’s academic and personal record but also the congruence of their intentions with the basic purposes of the seminary.

Applicants for the MDiv degree must hold the baccalaureate degree from an accredited college or university. Records and references should indicate an ability to pursue theological studies. In special circumstances, the seminary will also consider applications from a limited number of persons who may lack a baccalaureate degree but who can demonstrate that they possess the knowledge, academic skill, and ability associated with those who hold a baccalaureate degree.

The standard of academic performance that normally applies when evaluating undergraduate transcripts is a “B” average (3.0 or above on a 4.0 scale). However, admissions decisions also take into account other factors such as patterns of progress in the applicant’s academic history, difficulty of the undergraduate program and standards of the school attended, letters of reference, success in other graduate programs, and performance in an applicant’s career life.
English Language Skills
The seminary requires that all entering students submit a writing sample in English prior to their first fall orientation and follow through on any recommendations made through the assessment.

Applicants for whom English is not a primary language, including all applicants from abroad, must take the Test of English as a Foreign Language (TOEFL) or the International English Language Testing System (IELTS), which are given regularly at many centers throughout the world. Scores more than two years old will not be accepted. This examination may be waived if students can demonstrate that they have already earned a graduate degree in which the language of instruction was English. Students may attend the Summer Language Institute of the Language Resource and Writing Center held in July and August.

Candidacy for Ministry in the ELCA
Applicants preparing for rostered ministry in the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America should initiate the steps of the candidacy process as soon as possible, in most cases 12 months or more before beginning studies. See detailed candidacy information beginning on page 53.

Guidelines for Transfer Credit for Master’s-Level Students
The Director of the MA Programs and the Director of the MDiv Program review requests for transfer credit, under the supervision of the Dean and Vice President for Academic Affairs. Courses completed at another ATS-accredited institution may transfer and be credited toward one of LSTC’s first theological degree programs up to half of the credits of the LSTC degree, according to the following additional criteria:

• Each course for which a student is seeking transfer credit is demonstrably related in subject matter to the work required for the LSTC degree. Students will submit syllabi for courses they are seeking to transfer in order to help determine their transferability.

• Students have demonstrated success in the courses they wish to transfer. A grade of B or above is accepted as an adequate record of success.

• Before transfer credit is awarded for any course, an official transcript from the school where the course was taken must be received by the dean and vice president for academic affairs of LSTC.

• Students earning an LSTC degree must spend one full year of coursework (9 courses) in residence.
Application Process
A completed application includes the following items: application for admission, autobiographical statement of 800–1,000 words, official transcripts from all institutions where coursework has been completed since high school, and three letters of recommendation. Application instructions and documents are available at www.ltc.edu.

Applications are reviewed on a rolling basis and have no specific deadline dates. Interested persons should apply as early as possible in the academic year preceding the year in which they wish to begin their studies—that is, nine to 12 months before the anticipated time of enrollment. Once an application is complete it is reviewed by the admissions committee.

Applicants will be notified within four weeks of the decision made by the admissions committee. Although there is no formal cut-off date, applications should be submitted at least two months before the beginning of classes to allow for review by the admissions committee. Financial aid is based primarily on merit and is awarded as applications are received. There is no separate Financial Aid application.
Candidacy for Ministry in the ELCA

Candidacy in the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America is the churchwide process of preparation and formation leading to ordained ministry of word and sacrament or to rostered lay ministry as deacons. Candidacy involves the partnership of candidate, congregation, candidacy committee, seminary, and the ELCA Congregational and Synodical Mission Unit.

The ELCA Candidacy Manual contains full details about the candidacy process. This manual is available online at www.elca.org/Resources/Candidacy or in the JKM Library.

The coordinator for candidacy at the seminary assists students and synods in maintaining ecclesiastical relations and in coordinating the requirements of synod and seminary.

Only candidates approved by a candidacy committee are recognized and available for first call throughout the ELCA. The synods of the ELCA act on behalf of the whole ELCA in the candidacy process. Candidacy committees are responsible for:

- Determining the readiness of persons to enter the candidacy process and to begin theological education (entrance)
- Endorsing individuals as candidates (endorsement) for a particular roster
- Determining an individual’s qualifications and readiness to serve in rostered ministry (approval)

Every student seeking any ELCA rostered position passes through the following steps in the candidacy process. Candidates planning to become deacons participate in the same stages but the timing and some forms will vary with each individual’s situation.

The Congregational and Synodical Mission Unit of the ELCA is currently making changes to the Candidacy Manual and, therefore, the candidacy process. At the time of this writing, the changes are still being developed.

At its 2016 Churchwide Assembly, the ELCA approved unification of the lay ministry rosters into one Word and Service Roster. Learn more at the ELCA Candidacy web pages, www.elca.org/Resources/Candidacy.

Entrance Decision

Individuals begin candidacy by establishing contact with a synod candidacy committee. The synod often provides the individual with a discernment resource and the names of potential mentors. Application for candidacy includes an autobiographical essay. A student must show a minimum of one year’s active membership in a congregation of the ELCA in order to receive a positive entrance decision. The synod will request a congregational registration and arrange for an initial interview and a psychological and career evaluation. When all entrance steps have been completed, the applicant participates in an interview with the candidacy committee, which leads to the entrance decision.

The seminary will not normally extend a final offer of admission to an
ELCA CANDIDACY

ELCA applicant before receiving notification of a positive entrance decision by a candidacy committee. An applicant who has begun but not yet completed the entrance step in candidacy may receive a provisional offer of admission by the seminary. The seminary will withdraw such a provisional offer if the candidacy committee does not make a positive entrance decision by December 31 of the first year of study. (The seminary adjusts this deadline proportionately for those entering in the J-Term or Spring semester.)

Endorsement

Endorsement is the second step in the candidacy process and requires that students submit an essay by September 1 of their second year of full-time studies to their candidacy committees and their academic advisor. Shortly after that, an endorsement panel interviews the student to vote for endorsement, postponement, or denial. The endorsement panel also makes suggestions for candidates' continued growth during their remaining time at LSTC and internship.

Approval and Assignment

For students on a regular study and internship schedule, approval and assignment take place during the student's senior year. A final essay is submitted to the candidacy committee by September 1. In order to enter the assignment process in the ELCA, students must receive a positive evaluation of their internship work by the Field Education Office and a majority vote affirming their candidacy from the seminary faculty. These decisions are usually made by December for students on a regular study and internship schedule. Candidacy committees conduct approval interviews after the faculty decision and make their recommendation regarding approval for ordination or commissioning by January. Assignments to regions and synods occur in October and February.

Diaconal Ministry

At the time of publication of this catalog in Fall 2016, the following information on Diaconal Ministry is applicable for the next four months. New guidelines will be available for students who begin in January 2017 and later.

Diaconal ministry in the ELCA is “a form of leadership ministry designed to enable the church to more effectively fulfill its mission in the world.” Diaconal ministers serve in a variety of capacities—as chaplains in hospitals, prisons and hospice centers; as college or seminary professors; as community organizers or social service workers, to name but a few examples. LSTC is a partner with the student, her/his candidacy committee, and the ELCA in preparation for this lay rostered ministry. The three components to preparing for diaconal ministry include a theological degree, field studies and participation in the ELCA candidacy process.

Students must receive a positive entrance decision from their candidacy committee to enter seminary in the theological degree program best suited for their ministry goals. Most diaconal ministry candidates enroll in the MAM program. Other candidates choose the MDiv degree, especially those entering chaplaincy.
Lutheran Ministerial Formation
Formation for diaconal ministry also requires each student to enter into a relationship with a spiritual director. A minimum of 40 hours will be spent on spiritual direction and/or reflection and may be applied to the total number of field study hours.

Field Studies
Since diaconal ministry takes place on the boundaries where church and society interface, diaconal ministers must be able to understand and articulate the dynamics between congregational and societal systems. The field studies component includes the areas of contextualization, reflection, integration, and evaluation.

The student may arrange a variety of experiences, including Ministry in Context and CPE placements, to complete the field studies requirement. These elements should give the candidate supervised experience in three integral areas of preparation for diaconal ministry:

- Understanding and working with a congregation in relationship to the larger community
- Gaining expertise in a chosen area of specialization
- Theological and spiritual reflection about the relationship between these two areas

The field studies component of diaconal ministry requires a total of 800 hours, with 200 devoted specifically to the diaconal ministry project. The seminary will grant one course credit for the field studies experience. Although students may choose not to apply for academic credit, they must complete the field studies requirement and submit documentation of completion to the field education office.

For MAM students, the Ministry in Context course (ML-402) may count for either one elective credit or 200 hours of field studies. Students may also receive credit for up to two units of CPE.

Diaconal Ministry Project
The diaconal ministry project is the student's opportunity to engage a congregation or congregations at the interface of societal need and Christian service. It includes both a congregational component and work in the area of declared expertise. The diaconal ministry project requires 200 hours of service and can serve as the student's summative evaluation in the MAM program.

The seminary's field education office and the director of the MAM program can provide further information about the diaconal ministry program at LSTC. More information about diaconal ministry is at the ELCA Center for Diaconal Ministry Preparation at Lutheran Theological Seminary at Gettysburg. See www.ltsg.edu/Programs/Diaconal Ministry.
The “Lutheran Year”
LSTC welcomes candidacy students who are earning their theological degrees from other divinity schools or seminaries and who are required to affiliate with an ELCA seminary during the first full term of their theological studies.

The ELCA Candidacy Manual sets forth the following purpose and objectives for the residency year:

• To provide the candidate with a solid grounding in Lutheran systematic theology and the Lutheran Confessions, and to enable the candidate to articulate a Lutheran theological perspective. This happens not only in the study of theology, but in the study of church history, Bible, worship, preaching, education, pastoral care, and ethics.

• To provide the candidate with a sound understanding of ministry in a Lutheran context: a clear sense of the centrality of Word and Sacrament; an appreciation of the relationship between lay and ordained ministries; a familiarity with policy and practice associated with approval, call, and mobility; and the expectations of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America of its ordained ministers.

• To enable the candidate to establish relationships with future colleagues in ministry which are marked by mutual support and accountability.

The educational backgrounds of students who participate in the Lutheran Year of study at an ELCA seminary are varied. Some come from a school that has a strong concentration in Lutheran studies. Others come from a school where that was not possible. The year of studies at LSTC may take a variety of forms, depending on a student's educational background, ecclesiastical experience, and the recommendations of the student's candidacy committee.

A typical course of studies for students includes courses in Church History, the theology of Luther, systematic theology, worship, preaching, ethics, public church, and other courses as desired by the student, the candidacy committee, or the school.

The Candidacy Manual states that the “internship year must be scheduled in consultation with the candidacy committee and the ELCA-affiliated seminary. The internship may follow the completion of the MDiv degree at a non-ELCA seminary prior to the year of study at an ELCA seminary, or it may follow the year of study at an ELCA seminary. Four hundred hours of supervised clinical ministry is also a requirement for all candidates for ordained ministry.”

The Lutheran year is for the purpose of formation as well as education. Students completing the Lutheran year are assigned a faculty advisor and expected to participate fully in seminary activities as part of the formation process, including participation in seminary and Growth in Faith offerings.

Students who fulfill eight courses for the Lutheran Year or as a part of candidacy studies (e.g., Theological Education for Emerging Ministries, Word and Service certification) receive a certificate of studies awarded at graduation.
Lutheran Year and Degree Program at LSTC
Lutheran Year students can affiliate and attend LSTC as non-degree seeking students, but also have the opportunity to complete coursework for the master of arts in ministry (MAM) degree or the master of theology (ThM) in Lutheran Ministry Studies degree. Lutheran Year students who affiliate as degree-seeking students will need to work closely with their advisor and the director of their chosen degree program to confirm requirements and timeline for their degree.

Application Process for Lutheran Year students
Lutheran Year students are considered affiliate students and must apply for admission to LSTC. If applying for the ThM degree, students must complete the Advanced Studies application. All other affiliate and Lutheran Year applicants must complete the application for MDiv, MAM, and MATS students. A one-time affiliation fee of $900 must be paid in full at the time of application.
Advanced Degrees

Introduction to the ThM and PhD Programs

A program of advanced theological study has been a vital part of the seminary's mission, going back to its predecessor school, Chicago Lutheran Theological Seminary in Maywood, Ill., and augmented by the heritage brought from St. Louis by Christ Seminary–Seminex. The number of students in the master of theology/doctor of philosophy (ThM/PhD) programs is approximately 85 with approximately 45 students in residence. International students represent a large and important part of the program with respect to both their numbers and their contributions to theological dialogue and community life.
The ThM/PhD programs are marked by a number of characteristics that contribute to an excellent advanced education in the classical theological disciplines in conversation with the contemporary world:

- The faculty is made up of scholars who are leaders in their fields and who bring years of graduate teaching to bear upon their task.
- The student body consists of scholars from around the world (approximately one-half of all ThM/PhD students are from other countries, and some arrive with years of seminary teaching in their own backgrounds).
- Students have access to the resources of the JKM Library, one of the foremost theological collections in the country, supplemented by the libraries of other members of ACTS and the University of Chicago, including the Joseph Regenstein Library.
- Students in the program are encouraged to study with distinguished faculty at neighboring seminaries and the University of Chicago to greatly enrich course selection and broaden the student's experience through dialogue with additional discipline partners.
- The degree offered has an ecclesial and ecumenical base.
- The Language Resource and Writing Center (LRWC) provides excellent support for all students, including writing assessments and recommendations for all incoming students, the Summer Language Institute for new international students, a Learning Partner program pairing international and North American students, yearly intensive pedagogy seminars, and courses in languages, writing, and academic skills.
- Several LSTC and Hyde Park Cluster centers, including A Center of Christian–Muslim Engagement for Peace and Justice, the Albert "Pete" Pero Jr. Multicultural Center, and the Zygon Center for Religion and Science, enhance the academic environment, as do the conferences, lectures, and other events held on the adjacent University of Chicago campus.
- Two refereed, academic journals, Currents in Theology and Mission and Zygon: Journal of Religion and Science, published from LSTC’s campus, signal a commitment to scholarship at the highest level.
Mayuko Yasuda
ThM/PhD

When Mayuko Yasuda went to college, she didn’t know that she would be able to study the Bible. Only one percent of the people in her home country of Japan are Christian.

A strong sense of call to study theology led her to earn a bachelor’s in theology from Japan Lutheran College. Her New Testament professor there encouraged Yasuda to keep studying.

She started her graduate studies in Australia and then applied to LSTC’s PhD program. She entered LSTC’s master of theology/doctor of philosophy program in fall 2015. Yasuda said, “I am learning new methodologies for studying the New Testament that are not really introduced in Japan: the gospel and social theories, and post-colonial approaches that I learned in Ray Pickett’s class.”

Yasuda is still working on her English and is grateful for the English language classes as well as the international atmosphere of the Language Resource and Writing Center. Her learning partner is a fellow PhD student, Lydia Hernandez-Marcial.

A classical guitarist who used to spend five to eight hours a day practicing, Yasuda keeps music in her life by singing with the LSTC Gospel Choir and in the choir at Augustana Lutheran Church in Hyde Park.

It’s a challenge being so far from her close-knit family, but Yasuda stays in touch with her mother by phone. She was delighted to be able to return to Japan and to have her sister stay with her in Chicago during her first summer break.
Master of Theology

The master of theology (ThM) degree is a second master's degree designed to equip students with fuller knowledge and insight concerning a focused area or discipline of theological study than that acquired at the MDiv or MA level. For students admitted into the PhD program at LSTC, the ThM constitutes the first stage of the doctoral program.

Fields of Study

Students in the master of theology degree program choose from five areas of concentration: Lutheran ministry studies, biblical studies, historical studies, theological studies, and world Christianity and mission.

The ThM in Lutheran ministry studies is designed for students who desire to acquire the knowledge, insight, and skills needed for visionary leadership in Lutheran ministry for today's world. This degree program provides an attractive option for LSTC affiliates who have completed their MDiv or equivalent at another institution and are spending their Lutheran year at LSTC.

The program in biblical studies is offered in two forms, one of which includes work in both the Old and the New Testament, the other concentrating in one testament.

The student in historical studies may work generally on the history of the Christian tradition or may concentrate on a particular period or problem. Theological studies in the ThM program consist primarily of work in contemporary theology with extensive attention to its historical background.

The program in world Christianity and mission involves students in missiology, ecumenical relations, cultural environment, and world religions, as well as in the relation of the church to the social and political situation in various areas of the world. Those on furlough from overseas ministries may find this program of special interest.

General Requirements and Time Limit

Requirements in the ThM program include:

- Six courses at the advanced graduate level
- One or two biblical languages or a modern research language, depending on area of study
- A comprehensive examination.

Students must complete all requirements for the ThM degree within four years from the date of their first course registration.

Transfer of Credits

The division in which students are engaged in ThM work may grant a transfer of credit for one semester course from an accredited institution that is determined to be comparable in level to the advanced graduate seminars in the ThM/PhD programs at LSTC. Decisions concerning the transfer of credits into the ThM program are generally made after the first semester of studies at LSTC, and the quality of the student's work is an important factor in this consideration.

Coursework
In each field, the curriculum for the master's degree consists of six courses in the chosen field and in related areas determined in consultation with the faculty advisor. The normal load for a full-time student is three courses per semester. ThM students may consider pursuing the degree on a part-time basis, one course per semester for three years for example, or in a combination of part-time and full-time study. International students with F-1 or J-1 status must pursue a full-time course of study because of U.S. government regulations. For some first-year international students, two courses and intensive English instruction per semester may be considered full-time study.

Language Requirement
In all fields students must show competence at a scholarly level in the English language, which is the primary language used in the program of studies. Students studying both Old and New Testaments must be competent in both Greek and Hebrew for admission into the program, while those concentrating in the Old Testament must be competent in Hebrew and those concentrating in the New Testament in Greek. Advanced competence in the requisite biblical languages must be demonstrated through examination before the comprehensive examination.

In historical and theological studies and in world Christianity and mission, students for whom English is not a primary language may petition to have advanced academic English count as their modern research language. Students for whom English is the primary language often select German, French, Spanish or Arabic as their modern research language, although students are encouraged to petition to have the language most central to their research interests accepted. Competence in the selected research language must be demonstrated through examination before the comprehensive examination.

Application from the ThM Program to the PhD Program
Students admitted into the ThM program who want to be considered for admission to the PhD program must submit
- A written petition to take the ThM comprehensive examination at the qualifying level,
- Three letters of recommendation with at least two written by LSTC faculty members,
- A two-page essay of intellectual and vocational goals,
- GRE scores if not already submitted,
- Two academic papers from courses taken at LSTC,
- Any other materials required by the faculty division.
In addition, the petitioner must demonstrate fulfillment of the first language requirement(s) for the PhD.

This petition and all supporting documents listed above must be submitted to the Advanced Studies Office along with the comprehensive/qualifying examination proposal, for action by the faculty division in advance of the comprehensive/qualifying examination. If the petition is approved, the student will be allowed to take the ThM comprehensive examination at the qualifying level. A decision regarding admission into the PhD program will be made subsequently by the entire faculty division on the basis of this examination as well as on the strength of the other materials submitted and of the student’s performance during the entire program. Strategic interests related to faculty workload and the development of selected academic fields of study will also be considered.

Admission from the ThM program into the PhD program is highly selective and not automatic. In successful cases, the ThM comprehensive examination passed at the qualifying level serves as the PhD qualifying examination, and students receive credit for courses taken during the ThM program as part of the twelve courses required for the doctorate.
Doctor of Philosophy

The doctor of philosophy (PhD) degree program offers students the opportunity to acquire advanced expertise in a chosen field and to focus upon a selected subject of research. Goals of the program include helping students gain a wide range of disciplinary knowledge, developing their skills in research methodologies, and sharpening their abilities to express ideas orally and in writing. Students work closely with faculty advisors throughout their program. The culmination of the program is the doctoral dissertation, which sets forth a thesis and demonstrates its validity through extensive research, analysis, and synthesis of ideas.

The size of the ThM/PhD student body at LSTC ensures opportunity for lively interaction and participation in the seminars, while affording each student the individual faculty attention appropriate to education at this level.

Fields of Study

The seminary offers the PhD degree in the fields of Old Testament, New Testament, historical studies, theological studies (including concentrations in Christian ethics/church and society, religion and science, systematic theology, and theological anthropology), and world Christianity and mission.

Biblical Studies

Students work in both the Old Testament and the New Testament during the first year (or six courses) before the qualifying examination, but concentrate upon the testament of choice during the second half of the course requirements. The program requires a minimum of two seminars in the testament that is not the area of concentration. Doctoral work in this field emphasizes both the mastery of the technical tools of critical biblical scholarship and the significance of the biblical witness for the life of the church.

Historical Studies

Building on a broad mastery of the history of the Christian tradition and the tools of historiography, students may concentrate upon a particular period or problem corresponding to personal interests and faculty strengths.

Theological Studies

The discipline of systematic theology involves the task of working out a critical restatement of the Christian faith in light of the challenge of the contemporary intellectual and cultural context. The student works to gain a firm grasp of the historical background of contemporary problems and to attend to their philosophical dimensions. The goal is to combine mastery of the work done by others with the student's own growing competence in “doing theology.” The student may undertake studies in Christian ethics/church and society, systematic theology, and theological anthropology as concentrations within this field. There also are opportunities for doctoral study in religion and science, using the resources of the Zygon Center for Religion and Science.
(Joshua) Emmanuel Penumaka (2013, ThM) PhD

Emmanuel Penumaka did not want to be a pastor. Instead, he studied law and became a public prosecutor. After spending several years dealing with criminal cases he realized that he was not happy. “That’s when I went for theological studies,” Penumaka said.

He earned a bachelor of divinity degree in Bangalore, and first served a rural parish, then one in a town, and finally a parish in a city of six million people.

While earning a master’s degree, in Hong Kong, he served as a missionary pastor for a Chinese congregation in Hong Kong. He was disturbed by the personal and societal suffering he observed.

“People in Hong Kong were workaholics. This destroyed family culture. Families suffered because they did not have quality time together. Children didn’t have the love and care that can create something different in society,” Penumaka said.

Seeing this suffering and thinking about theology of the law, Penumaka came across Vítor Westhelle’s book, The Scandalous God. It inspired him to apply to the PhD program at LSTC.

As he reached the dissertation stage of his studies, Penumaka took a long time to decide where to focus his research and writing. “My thinking changed while I was reading the books. Now I am doing a more interdisciplinary study,” he said.

His reading led him to Japanese theologian Kazoh Kitamori and his dissertation topic. Using Kitamori’s writing on theology and the pain of God, Penumaka will look at Buddhism and Luther, particularly an understanding of suffering as a way to unite with God, and whether this is masochism or redemptive suffering.
World Christianity and Mission
World Christianity and mission builds on the programs in historical and theological studies at LSTC. It draws on the resources of the Association of Chicago Theological Schools, especially the Catholic Theological Union and McCormick Theological Seminary, and the University of Chicago. Students in this field are admitted either in historical studies/world Christianity and mission or in theological studies/world Christianity and mission. Students desiring to focus on interfaith and cross-cultural studies are encouraged to consider this concentration.

General Requirements and Time Limit
Requirements in the doctoral program include:
• 12 courses at the advanced graduate level, including at least one year of full-time study
• Demonstration of the ability to use foreign languages as research tools
• A qualifying examination at about the mid-point of coursework (the successful completion of which leads to receiving the ThM degree)
• Preparation of a dissertation proposal
• A field examination
• Writing a dissertation
• Defense of the dissertation at a final colloquy

Pedagogical training, including an intensive pedagogy seminar and experience as a teaching or research assistant is also highly recommended.

Students must complete all requirements for the PhD degree within seven years after their first course registration.

African–American Scholars Program
In 1990 the seminary’s board of directors established an African–American scholars program designed to increase the number of African–American professors on the faculty, and this program continues now under the auspices of the ELCA Covenant Cluster (LSTC, Trinity Lutheran and Wartburg Theological Seminaries). Under this plan, cluster seminaries identify a promising African–American doctoral student and provide special financial support during his or her doctoral program. The first candidate to participate in this program was Dr. Richard J. Perry, Jr., professor of ethics/church and society/urban ministry at LSTC. Candidates for this program may contact the dean and vice president for academic affairs for more information.
The Hispanic Theological Initiative Consortium
In 2007, the Lutheran School of Theology at Chicago joined 16 other PhD-granting institutions in the United States to establish the Hispanic Theological Initiative Consortium presently based at Princeton Theological Seminary. Among the goals of this organization is a commitment to identify and prepare highly trained educators and leaders; an increase in the recruitment, retention and graduation rates of Latino/Latina PhD. students; a growth in the presence of Latina/o faculty; and the creation of a forum for the exchange of information, ideas and best practices to address the needs of Latina/o faculty and students. Six students who successfully completed their PhD degrees at LSTC have participated in this consortium. Latino/Latina PhD candidates for this program may contact the Director of Advanced Studies for more information.

Admission to the ThM and PhD Programs
The Lutheran School of Theology at Chicago admits qualified students without regard to race, color, national and ethnic origin, age, gender, sexual orientation, gender identity, marital or veteran's status, physical ability and social class.

The Advanced Studies Office processes applications to the master of theology and doctor of philosophy programs. Anyone interested in these programs may contact the Advanced Studies Office at 773.256.0745 or advancedstudies@lstc.edu. Application instructions and documents are available at www.lstc.edu.

Requirements for Acceptance
An MDiv degree or its equivalent is a prerequisite for admission to the seminary's ThM/PhD programs. Supporting documents, such as transcripts and letters of reference, are specified on the application form. The seminary may also request a diagnostic review or examination of the applicant.

All applicants for admission to the PhD program who are from the United States and Canada must either take the Graduate Record Examination (GRE), General Test only, or submit the results of this examination if they have taken it within the last two years.

The seminary recommends that all entering students submit a writing sample in English prior to their first fall orientation and follow through on any recommendations made through the assessment.

Applicants for whom English is not a primary language, including all applicants from abroad, must take the Test of English as a Foreign Language (TOEFL) or the International English Language Testing System (IELTS), which are given regularly at many centers throughout the world. Scores more than two years old will not be accepted. This examination may be waived if students can demonstrate that they have already earned a graduate degree in which the language of instruction was English. Students may attend the Summer Language Institute of the Language Resource and Writing Center held in July–August.

As part of a collaborative agreement within the Covenant Cluster of ELCA seminaries, students from Trinity Lutheran Seminary and Wartburg Theological Seminary may participate in the Hispanic Theological Initiative Consortium.
Shane Brinegar
PhD

Shane Brinegar discovered his love of liturgy when he was 12 years old. That was when he asked his mother to take him to a Catholic church. “I was captivated by the liturgy,” he said.

By the time he was 14, he was involved with the Legionaries of Christ and reading Aquinas and other theologians. “I felt there was something in me—a vocation to be a priest.” But when he talked to a priest about his feeling he was told that he would never be a priest because he was in a wheelchair.

Brinegar became a Lutheran during his junior year of college. He said, “I was reading Luther and the Augsburg Confessions when, during Lent, the priest said that we needed to do penance, and that I could ‘offer up my suffering,’ to be worthy to receive communion. I told the priest, ‘If we have to be “properly prepared” every time we receive communion, why would we need communion?’”

Still feeling a call to serve the church, Brinegar enrolled in the MDiv program at the Lutheran Theological Seminary at Philadelphia. “When it came time to learn where we were going on internship, I looked at my classmates. They were just glowing with anticipation. I didn’t feel that way. I went to my mentor, Dr. Gordon Lathrop, and told him how I felt. He told me, ‘you need to do advanced degree work.’”

Brinegar is interested in both liturgy and confessions. “Liturgy shaped my formation, but in my later teens, I discovered Confessions... my sense of call to serve the church has evolved into something very different. I am content to be an academic and a lay theologian. My call is not to Word and Sacrament ministry.”
Seminary who have received their STM with high honors and who have been recommended by their faculty will receive priority consideration for admission to the LSTC doctoral program. In most cases, the STM degree work of such students will be judged to satisfy the first stage of the PhD program at LSTC, through the qualifying examination.

Application Process
Completed applications for admission into the ThM and PhD programs and all supporting documents including GRE, TOEFL, and IELTS scores must be received by the Advanced Studies Office no later than January 15 in order to be considered for admission and financial aid for the following academic year. All advanced studies applicants must pay a one-time application fee of $50. Fee may be paid through checks paid by bank draft, postal money order, or personal check written on a U.S. bank (payable to LSTC.)

Global Mission Scholarships are available to Lutheran international students seeking financial support. Applicants should apply through their national church to Ms. Tammy Jackson, Director for Leadership Development, Global Mission Unit, Evangelical Lutheran Church in America, 8765 West Higgins Road, Chicago, IL 60631, USA, 773.380.2639, Tammy.Jackson@elca.org. Completed scholarship applications are due by October 15 the following academic year.

Tuition and Fees
Information about current tuition and fees may be found in the “Costs of Seminary Education” section starting on page 109.
Chingboi Guite (2014, ThM)
PhD

Chingboi Guite has chosen to examine the return of the exiles in the book of Ezra. She sees parallels with her own community, the Paite-Zomi people in northeastern India, who became Christians in 1910. The Zomi people lived mostly in northeast India, Bangladesh, and Burma, but today are scattered in different parts of the world.

“When I go home, I notice that people have much more diverse views of Christianity because they have lived in other places,” Guite said. “I may or may not be able to get my own context into my dissertation, but I feel that this work will help my people understand our own identity better.”

Guite, herself, has been away from her village for almost 10 years. “I still have my core identity but it makes me more open or humble to listen and understand someone else’s views and beliefs. I am less judgmental. Living in another country, you see things differently and sometimes more clearly.”

She and her husband, Pastor Ashley N. Phaipi, want their daughter, Chingnunhoih (Nunhoih), to hold onto Paite-Zomi identity. “At home we use our language to speak with her. Already she knows Paite and English words for the same thing, so maybe she is bi-lingual already!”

They are already praying about what the next steps will be for their family when Guite completes her PhD. “Back home, our church’s college, Grace Bible College, is in need of Old Testament faculty. There are no Old Testament scholars among the Paite yet.”

As members of the American Baptist Church, they are also exploring the possibility of being missionaries for the denomination. Guite said, “We still have our hearts among our people, but we are open to wherever God leads us.”
Doctor of Ministry

LSTC provides two doctor of ministry programs through partnerships with other seminaries. The ACTS Doctor of Ministry in Preaching involves six other Chicago seminaries in addition to LSTC. The seminary offers the Ecumenical Doctor of Ministry with concentrations in cross-cultural ministries, liturgy, spirituality, educating for witness, and Hispanic theology and ministry in collaboration with two other Hyde Park seminaries.

Doctor of Ministry in Preaching

The ACTS Doctor of Ministry in Preaching is a joint program of seven member seminaries of the Association of Chicago Theological Schools (ACTS): Chicago Theological Seminary, Garrett-Evangelical Theological Seminary, Lutheran School of Theology at Chicago, McCormick Theological Seminary, North Park Theological Seminary, Northern Seminary, and Bexley-Seabury Seminary Federation. Participants apply to the program through any of the participating seminaries and the seminary through which one enters is also the degree-granting school. The program admits a maximum class of 32 participants across schools.

The ACTS DMin in Preaching Program is a three-year program. During each year, participants spend three weeks during the summer in residence in Chicago taking courses, engaging in colloquies related to parish projects, developing their thesis subjects, and other program topics.

Year One

In the first year of the program, participants complete two courses and one colloquy during their three weeks in Chicago. The required course is “Preaching as Interpretation” and participants also select one elective. The colloquy focuses on diagnostic evaluation and the creation of the parish project. During the academic year and between the first and second summers, participants complete a parish project in their place of ministry in conjunction with persons in their ministry site.

Year Two

During the second year, participants again complete two courses and one colloquy during their three weeks in Chicago. The core course is “Preaching as Performance” and participants also select one elective. The colloquy serves to develop learning goals for the program, design parish courses, initiate the thesis subject, and examine the sermon preparation process. During the academic year and between the second and third summers, participants complete another parish project in their place of ministry in conjunction with persons in their ministry site.

Year Three

During the third year, participants complete the last three-week summer residency in Chicago. The core course is “Preaching as Social Transformation” and participants also select one elective. The colloquy continues the objectives of the two previous summers. Participants then complete a thesis during the year following the third residency.

Awarding of the Degree
The seminary awards the DMin degree to those candidates who fulfill the requirements of the program and have made full payment of all financial obligations including any to JKM Library and other ACTS schools that have provided services.

Admission
Application forms and other information about the DMin in Preaching Program are available by contacting:

ACTS DMin in Preaching Program
5460 S. University Avenue
Chicago, IL 60615
773.947.6270
www.actsdminpreaching.org/contact-us

Applications are also available for downloading at www.actsdminpreaching.org
Completed applications for the program should be sent to LSTC’s Advanced Studies Office.

Prerequisites for admission to this program are an MDiv degree or its equivalent from an accredited theological school (with a B average), at least three years of full-time pastoral experience, and recommendations from both the governing board and a preaching assessment committee of the applicant’s current ministry context.

The applicant must submit a completed application form, transcripts of graduate theological studies and any other graduate work, the statements of assessment, and a non-refundable $50 application fee to the Advanced Studies Office by January 31 of the entering year. The seminary’s doctor of ministry committee reviews all applications and forwards its recommendation to the DMin in Preaching Program committee, which includes representatives from each of the participating seminaries. The program committee makes entrance decisions before March 1.

Tuition and Fees
Information about current tuition and fees is available in the costs of seminary education section on page 109.

Further Information
The ACTS DMin in Preaching is administered by Program Coordinator Marcy Miller whose office is located at 5460 S. University Ave., Chicago, IL 60615. Further information about the program is available by writing to the coordinator at mfmiller@mccormick.edu or by calling 773.947.6270.

Ecumenical Doctor of Ministry
The Ecumenical Doctor of Ministry Program, with concentrations in cross-cultural studies, liturgy, spirituality, Hispanic theology and ministry, and educating for witness is sponsored by the Catholic Theological Union, the Lutheran School of Theology at Chicago and McCormick Theological Seminary. Concentrations enable participants to advance the integration of their knowledge and skills in specific ministry areas. Students apply and may matriculate through any of the three participating seminaries, which would be the degree-granting school.

Cross-cultural Studies Concentration
This concentration is for persons who already have experience in cross-cultural ministry who are not members of the culture in which they serve or are ministering in a minority culture. In the latter case the minister may or may not be a member of that same minority culture.

  Degree work helps students develop tools for analyzing cultures, communicating across cultural boundaries, and using differing styles of leadership appropriate to living on cultural boundaries.

Liturgy Concentration
This concentration is for persons who already have experience in liturgical ministries. It is designed to enable students to make the entire worship event more effective. By combining historical and systematic studies with emerging pastoral methods students will learn to construct worship in light of liturgical traditions and to assess the effectiveness of worship in particular communities.
Spirituality Concentration
The concentration in spirituality is designed to enhance the reflective and pastoral skills of those who wish to foster spiritual development through leadership within Christian communities. The concentration emphasizes the leader's growth in theological, historical, and cross-cultural awareness as well as in pastoral expertise.

Educating for Witness Concentration
This concentration is designed for those who assume leadership in educating believers both in the knowledge and in the practice of their faith. It combines religious education, communications, proclamation, what Roman Catholics call “evangelization” and catechesis with the study of key religious values and practices (e.g., peace-building, the promotion of justice, etc.). The concentration invites students to consider together such key values and practices side by side with the strategic means for forming people in these values and practices.

Hispanic Theology and Ministry
Hispanic Theology and Ministry models pastoral y teología en conj unto in preparing leaders for this fastest growing population in our churches.

Program Requirements
The Ecumenical DMin Program consists of 10 course credits distributed as follows:
- Core colloquia (2 course credits)
- Electives in the concentration (4 course credits)
- Electives outside the concentration (2 course credits)
- DMin thesis-project (2 course credits)

The minimum time to complete the course work is one academic year plus a one-week August intensive. The entire program, including thesis project, ordinarily is completed in not less than two years and not more than five years.

Admission
The Office of the Ecumenical Doctor of Ministry Program, located at Catholic Theological Union, coordinates admission to this program. Application forms and other information are available by contacting

Janet L. Hoffman
Academic Services Assistant
Catholic Theological Union
5401 S. Cornell Avenue
Chicago, IL 60615
773-371-5444
dmin@ctu.edu
Requirements for Acceptance and Application Process
Prerequisites for admission to this program through LSTC are an MDiv degree or its equivalent from an accredited theological school (with a B average) and five years of full-time ministry experience in the area of concentration. In addition, the applicant must obtain a letter of recommendation from an ecclesiastical superior who can evaluate his/her ministry experience, someone qualified to comment on the applicant’s academic record, and a peer in ministry.

Applicants must submit a completed application form and other required documents to the Ecumenical DMin Program Office by April 15 of the entering year. That office forwards the applications to the LSTC Advanced Studies Office. The seminary's Doctor of Ministry Committee reviews them and sends its recommendations back to the Ecumenical DMin Program Office.

Tuition and Fees
$12,000 for the entire three-year program

For more information about the program and about matriculation through LSTC, please contact the Advanced Studies Office at LSTC, advancedstudies@lstc.edu.
Academic Resources

JKM Library

The JKM Library emphasizes its instructional role, providing classroom and workshop instruction as well as the more traditional one-on-one reference service. Users’ questions and requests will be answered both in person and through infocommons@jkmlibrary.org.

All of JKM’s policies and procedures, services, hours, links to its databases and other electronic resources, and its on-line catalog can be found on the library’s website, www.jkmlibrary.org. On campus, JKM provides patron computers, free scanning, wireless access, photocopying as well as research instruction and traditional library services.

The “K” of “JKM” stands for the Krauss Library, named for the Rev. Dr. Paul H. Krauss, pastor of Trinity English Lutheran Church, Fort Wayne, Ind., from 1920 to 1967. The Krauss Library resulted from the merger of several seminaries to form the Lutheran School of Theology at Chicago. The collection has been further enhanced by collaboration from 1970 until 1981 with the Jesuit School of Theology at Chicago (the “J”), and, since 1975, with McCormick Theological Seminary (the “M”). Today the collection is housed in the west wing of LSTC’s academic complex, and consists of over 417,000 items.
Curator Ralph Klein gives a tour of the rare book room.
Other Libraries
The JKM Library is a member of I-Share, a consortium of 84 libraries in Illinois, holding more than 36 million items. A complete list of I-Share libraries is on the JKM website at the Links tab. I-Share libraries offer Universal Borrowing in which patrons may borrow items from any of the I-Share libraries by requesting them through the catalog when those items are not available at JKM. Requested items are sent from the lending library to JKM via courier. I-Share’s reciprocal borrowing policy also allows JKM patrons to visit any other I-Share library and borrow items onsite. This Universal Borrowing is distinct from interlibrary loans, which is a relationship among libraries not in I-Share.

Through direct borrowing or by using a courier system, students and faculty may also borrow materials from all of the member libraries of the Association of Chicago Theological Schools (ACTS), nine seminary libraries holding 2 million volumes and 12,000 current periodical titles.

In addition, Hyde Park is a remarkable place to study because of the many libraries within walking distance of the seminary. These include the Joseph Regenstein Library and the John Crerar Library of the University of Chicago, where seminary faculty and students have borrowing privileges, as well as the libraries of the Catholic Theological Union and Chicago Theological Seminary.

Rare Book and Manuscript Collections
The JKM Library houses several significant LSTC-owned collections including twelve New Testament Greek manuscripts from the 9th through the 13th centuries (these include an entire New Testament, individual gospels, and gospel lectionaries). The LSTC collection also has two pages from the Gutenberg Bible, eighty works published by Luther during his lifetime (e.g., the September and December testaments, the 95 theses), four hand written Luther letters, English Bibles of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, and 130 commemorative Lutheran anniversary medals. People interested in viewing these documents may access them by making arrangements with Dr. Ralph W. Klein, LSTC rare books curator (rklein@lstc.edu). A website contains pictures and descriptions of all the items in the collections (collections.lstc.edu). A new exhibit of works from the collection appears every three months in the JKM reading room.

In 2008, McCormick Theological Seminary entered into an innovative partnership with the world-renowned Newberry Library. At that time approximately 2,035 McCormick rare books (650 of which came from Lane Theological Seminary) moved to the Newberry on irrevocable deposit.

Institute for Syriac Manuscript Studies
This Institute was founded in 1989 through the generosity of a group of Milwaukee business people. Through the life-long efforts of the late Arthur Vööbus, professor of New Testament and early church history, thousands of valuable manuscripts from the Syriac tradition were photographed and housed at the Institute. In 2016 the entire collection was permanently transferred by LSTC to the Hill Museum & Manuscript Library at St. John's University in Collegeville, Minn., which will preserve the collection and make it available for use by scholars from around the world. Inquiries should be directed to Father Columba Stewart OSB (cstewart@csbsju.edu).

LSTC and ELCA Archives

The LSTC archives contain the records of the Lutheran School of Theology itself, as well as those of three of its predecessor seminaries: Augustana Theological Seminary, Chicago Lutheran Theological Seminary, and Central Lutheran Theological Seminary. The Sittler Archives are also housed on the LSTC campus.

The archives of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America (ELCA), housed in a building near the Chicago headquarters of the ELCA, provide special research opportunities for students of North American Lutheran church history. These archives are the official repository of the records created and received by the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America and its predecessor bodies. They document activities of the church in society, church extension, home and world missions, ecumenism, worship, parish education, and theological education.

The ELCA archives also contain records of major church leaders, including their personal papers, and of a number of church-related social welfare agencies, educational institutions, synods, and congregations. Additional information about these archives is available on the ELCA’s Internet site at www.elca.org/About/History/Archives.
LSTC and McCormick Theological Seminary jointly operate the Language Resource and Writing Center (LRWC), which is located on the third floor of the east wing. The LRWC tailors its services to meet the needs of individual students and hires students as learning partners who work collaboratively to improve writing skills, negotiate course work, do research, and develop second and third language skills including Spanish and Korean.

In addition, the LRWC offers:

- A year-long sequence of English-as-second-language classes for listening/speaking and reading/writing
- Writing for Seminary, also a sequenced class for native English speakers
- Study Methods for Theological Education, a course that orients students to the critical tools they are expected to use in their seminary studies
- The Summer Language Institute, a two-month intensive course for incoming international student, focusing on language skills and meeting the cross-cultural challenges of living and studying in Chicago
- Weekly Global Conversations, Mondays at noon, with soup and bread

The LRWC is a “home away from home” for students from both seminary communities. It provides a safe and nurturing environment in which students may grow and learn from each other, gaining new insights and new communication skills along the way.
Technology for Teaching and Learning

LSTC uses many different technologies to support faculty and students in their diverse teaching and learning styles, primarily through the LSTC Information Technology Services Department and the Teaching and Learning Technologist. Digital projectors and other multimedia equipment have been installed in a number of classrooms and media carts can be set up anywhere. Biblical concordance programs are available in the Language Resource and Writing Center (LRWC). Online and hybrid courses are offered on our Learning Management System, the LSTC portal LSTCNet (http://lstcnet.lstc.edu). LSTCNet also provides students with direct access to on-line registration, a community calendar, academic records and financial information. Wireless internet access is available in classrooms and throughout most areas of the campus.
Association of Chicago Theological Schools (ACTS)

The Association of Chicago Theological Schools (ACTS) is a consortium of 11 seminaries which provide a wealth of resources to all of the students in those schools. ACTS fosters cooperation among its member institutions, particularly in the areas of student cross-registration, library access and acquisitions policies, and interchange among faculty members.

All ACTS schools are accredited members of the Association of Theological Schools in the United States and Canada. Each is affiliated with or sponsored by a denomination, a diocese, or a consortium of religious orders. Each offers a professional degree program for ministry, and most offer other master's and doctoral degrees as well.

The cooperative structure of ACTS makes it possible for students and faculty to pursue their work, study, and reflection interacting with people from many different cultural and theological traditions. ACTS makes special efforts in the areas of African-American studies, women's studies, Hispanic studies, interfaith studies, and the provision of theological language courses.

Students may also choose from the hundreds of offerings of ACTS institutions, subject to limitations specified by the degree program in which they are enrolled, without additional charges of any kind. This can be done simply by filling out an ACTS Cross-Registration and Grade Report form during the normal registration period. The ACTS online catalog, accessible through the LSTC website or at www.acts-chicago.org, provides full information on the courses to be taught at the 11 schools in the coming year, as well as academic information on the regular and adjunct faculty members of the various schools.

ACTS Member Schools

ACTS member schools in the immediate vicinity of LSTC include McCormick Theological Seminary (Presbyterian USA), the Catholic Theological Union (a federation of more than 30 Roman Catholic religious orders), Chicago Theological Seminary (United Church of Christ), and Bexley-Seabury Seminary Federation (Episcopal).

Seminaries located in other areas of the Chicago region are Meadville Lombard Theological School (Unitarian/Universalist), Northern Baptist Theological Seminary (American Baptist), North Park Theological Seminary (Evangelical Covenant), Garrett-Evangelical Theological Seminary (United Methodist), Trinity Evangelical Divinity School (Evangelical), and Mundelein Seminary of the University of St. Mary of the Lake (the seminary of the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Chicago).

Together, the schools within ACTS offer a rich network of resources for theological education, making the Chicago area one of the leading centers for theological education in the world. It has been said that the only other place more people study Christian theology is Rome, Italy.
University of Chicago Divinity School

Graduate courses at the Divinity School and other departments or divisions of the University of Chicago may also be taken, although students may find them more appropriate and beneficial in the advanced stages of their program. The bi-registration plan with the University of Chicago permits students to take courses at half of the usual University of Chicago tuition cost. Information on course offerings should be obtained from the particular school, department, or division of the university, or online at their website. The Registrar's Office at LSTC may be able to assist in directing inquiries concerning course offerings and registration at the University of Chicago.
Centers and Initiatives

A Center of Christian-Muslim Engagement for Peace and Justice
For many years LSTC has drawn upon Chicago’s many cultures and various faiths to teach students how to witness to God’s love in Christ Jesus while understanding and respecting the faiths of Jews, Muslims, Hindus, Buddhists and neighbors from other faith traditions. The seminary has long been teaching courses on Jewish contributions to Christian thought, and since 1991 has offered team-taught courses on Islam and Christian-Muslim relations.

Over the years, LSTC has been privileged to welcome Muslims from around the world who come to study for advanced degrees with concentrations in interfaith studies or to spend a period of time here for research purposes. LSTC has been chosen for this unique interfaith exchange because of its excellent faculty, its diverse urban setting and the resources available through LSTC’s relationship with the Hyde Park Cluster Seminaries and the University of Chicago.

Thanks to a generous gift, LSTC has been able to enhance these efforts and move into a deeper, more intentional and sustained relationship with the Muslim community. September 2006 marked the establishment of the Harold S. Vogelaar Chair in Christian-Muslim Studies and Interfaith Relations and the inauguration of A Center of Christian-Muslim Engagement for Peace and Justice (CCME). The primary work of the chair and Center is to foster and deepen relations between Christians and Muslims, and to make significant contributions to the larger purpose of promoting peace and building bridges of mutual understanding, cooperation and respect among people of all faiths.

A strong core of courses in Islam and Christian-Muslim relations are routinely offered and additional courses are available at other ACTS schools. These offerings provide many opportunities for students who wish to take a course or two in Christian–Muslim relations or for students seeking a concentration in Christian–Muslim studies.

The Center also sponsors workshops and conferences as opportunities to deepen and develop mutual understanding between communities. Interfaith creative arts programs (plays and concerts), social justice activities, and skill-building sessions are all a part of the Center's work. For additional information, contact CCME program coordinator, Sara Trumm at ccme@lstc.edu.

Cheryl Pero, director of the Pero Multicultural Center

The Albert “Pete” Pero Jr. Multicultural Center
The Albert “Pete” Pero Jr. Multicultural Center develops programs, events, and activities to enrich the curriculum of LSTC's degree programs as well as to provide lifelong learning opportunities for lay persons. It works with the Field Education Office, churchwide agencies, synods, cluster Lutheran and ecumenical seminaries, congregations, and community organizations to identify multicultural human resources, congregations, immersion experiences and opportunities for internship, ministry in context, and other possibilities for multicultural theological and ministerial formation.

LSTC has been committed to multicultural theological education and church leadership since its inception in 1962. Multiculturalism is one of the distinguishing marks of LSTC. Recognizing that our understanding of multiculturalism has evolved in the seminary's 50-year history, the Center emphasizes the exposure of students to multiculturalism in their theological education preparation in order for them to be able to minister in a multicultural world. With the exception of America Indian/Alaska Native communities and the descendants of those Africans brought to the US as slaves, all cultures have immigrated from other global contexts to the United States. As a consequence, the Pero Multicultural Center celebrates LSTC’s international students and their families. However, the center is very careful to separate and address the needs of domestic students of color from those of our international students. The center is intentionally connected to the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America (ELCA) and seeks to engage congregations of the Metropolitan Chicago Synod of the ELCA—the synod within which LSTC is located.

LSTC’s multicultural commitment to working with and developing resources for theological education include being a sponsor of the national ecumenical Hispanic Summer Program (1980–present), and collaborating with Wartburg Theological Seminary in the Latino/Latina track of the program of Theological Education for Emerging Ministries (TEEM) with offices at the Lutheran Seminary Program of the Southwest (LSPS) in Austin, Texas.

The Multicultural Center began in 2006 when LSTC received a three-year grant from the ELCA. Its mission was to recruit and prepare candidates from under-represented racial and ethnic cultures in the ELCA for rostered leadership in the church. In 2011 the LSTC Board of Directors approved changing the center’s name to the Albert “Pete” Pero Jr. Multicultural Center to honor the multicultural contributions and legacy of the Rev. Dr. “Pete” Pero, Jr., professor emeritus of systematic theology.

The Pero Multicultural Center provides academic emphases that enrich the program of studies for LSTC students interested in culturally specific ministries. These include emphases in Latino/Latina ministry, African Descent ministry, Asian American ministry, and American Indian/Alaskan Native ministry for the MDiv, MATS, and MAM degree curricula. Upon successful completion of the requirements, the student who has focused on a particular cultural emphasis will receive a special certificate during commencement. Dr. Cheryl Pero offers a for-credit biblical course annually: Reading Scripture through Multicultural Perspectives.

Zygon Center for Religion and Science
The Zygon Center for Religion and Science is dedicated to relating religious traditions and scientific knowledge in order to gain insight into the origins, nature, and destiny of humans and their environment, and to realize the common goal of a world in which love, justice, and responsible patterns of living prevail. Seeking to harness religion and science together in this shared purpose, the Zygon Center takes its distinctive name from the Greek word for “yoking” or “joining.” Established in 1988, the Zygon Center is a partnership of the Lutheran School of Theology at Chicago (LSTC) and the Center for Advanced Study in Religion and Science (CASIRAS). The Zygon Center is a leading center in the field and the only such center directly associated with a Lutheran seminary. The center shares its offices with Zygon: Journal of Religion and Science, the oldest peer-reviewed academic journal in the field.

The life of the Zygon Center takes shape in teaching, research, and outreach. Teaching includes several course offerings, the MA/MDiv study emphasis and
The ThM/PhD concentration in religion and science, and faculty advising for LSTC students. Offered in alternating academic years, The Epic of Creation and The Future of Creation are graduate-level seminary courses and public lecture series in which affiliated faculty from several universities and seminaries offer scientific, biblical, and theological perspectives on our common origins and nature, and on our shared destiny and environment. Offered annually, the Advanced Seminar in Religion and Science explores new and enduring issues through interdisciplinary inquiry in a research seminar for faculty, graduate students, and other professionals; recent seminar topics have included religious naturalism, teleology and design arguments, urban nature, situated mind, and the inner self. Lectures in all three courses are free and open to the public, and course credit is available through LSTC or via cross-registration through other schools of the Association of Theological Schools (ACTS).

For more information, please see www.zygoncenter.org and the course listings at www.lstc.edu/academics/courses/.

The study emphasis in religion and science gives MATS, MAM, and MDiv students the opportunity to develop their scholarly interests and ministry capacities through an individualized program of coursework, fieldwork, and projects. The concentration in religion and science gives ThM and PhD students the opportunity to pursue research, develop teaching expertise, and write theses or dissertations in consultation with faculty advisors. Zygon Center courses also support the emphasis in environmental ministry. For more information, please see the descriptions for concentrations and emphases in this catalog or online.

Dr. Lea F. Schweitz, associate professor of systematic theology/religion and science, serves as director of the Zygon Center and is the primary faculty advisor to LSTC students in religion and science. Dr. Gayle E. Woloschak, molecular biologist and professor at the Feinberg School of Medicine at Northwestern University, serves as associate director of the Zygon Center and adjunct professor of religion and science at LSTC and is available as an advisor. Affiliated faculty at LSTC and other institutions also advise and mentor doctoral, master’s, and ministry students at LSTC.

The Zygon Center sponsors other public events including a film series, field trips, conferences, workshops and public lectures by leading scientists and scholars. Increasingly, these events will be available at the Zygon Center website, along with learning modules on knowledge, the brain, genetics, and landscapes. For further information, visit www.zygoncenter.org, email zcrs@lstc.edu, or call 773.256.0670.

LSTC as a Green Zone

Since the late 1980s, the Lutheran School of Theology at Chicago (LSTC) has been a leader in equipping students with theological foundations and practical skills to lead congregations and communities in the care of creation. The seminary has been designated as a leading institution by Theological Education to Meet the Environmental Challenge, named as a leader in sustainable theological education by Sojourners magazine, and supported by the ELCA Hunger and Environment Program.

Founded by Dr. David Rhoads, professor emeritus of New Testament, the Green Zone is a working group of students, staff, and faculty committed to integrate care for creation into the life of the seminary through:

- Worship, including the Feast of St. Francis of Assisi, the Season of Creation, Earth Week, and liturgical actions throughout the year
- Education, including lectures, film screenings, Growth in Faith workshops, and Leadership Conference workshops
• Institutional practices, including energy conservation, recycling, composting, and sustainable landscaping
• Personal practices, including sustainable eating, community gardening, composting, recycling, and energy conservation
• Public ministry and advocacy, including seminary work in support of congregational, synodical, denominational, and ecumenical efforts

For more information, please email greenzone@lstc.edu.

The Environmental Ministry Emphasis, directed by Dr. Barbara Rossing, professor of New Testament, offers MATS, MAM, and MDiv students the opportunity to learn to address environmental issues in their ministry and scholarship. For more information, please see the description of study emphases in this catalog or online.

The Green Zone recommends the following resources for environmental ministry:
• The Web of Creation (www.webofcreation.org/), home of the Green Congregation Program with a website full of resources for congregations working on environmental justice and sustainability.
• Let All Creation Praise (www.letallcreationpraise.org/), home of the Season of Creation movement in North America with resources for congregations worshipping God with care for creation.
• Bible and Ecology (www.bibleandecology.org/), with resources for pastors, students, scholars, activists, and artists wanting to explore the scriptural foundations of sustainability and stewardship.
• Lutherans Restoring Creation (www.lutheransrestoringcreation.org/), home of a grassroots movement promoting care for creation in the full life and mission of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America (ELCA).
Publications

Currents in Theology and Mission
The seminary publishes Currents in Theology and Mission, which contains essays on important theological research and on current opportunities for and challenges to ministry. Currents is published quarterly (January, April, July, and October) as an online, open-access journal (www.currentsjournal.org). Each issue also includes reviews of recent theological books and preaching helps for each Sunday and major festival of the church year. Wartburg Theological Seminary partners with LSTC in publishing the journal. Kathleen D. Billman and Craig L. Nessan serve as general editors and Barbara K. Lundblad serves as editor of Preaching Helps. Ralph W. Klein, Craig L. Nessan, and Troy M. Troftgruben serve as book review editors. Faculty members and alumni from the partner schools serve on the editorial board. Kathryn Hillert Brewer serves as assistant editor and designer, Connie M. Sletto serves as copy-editor, and River Needham serves as office manager. Questions about Currents may be emailed to currents@lstc.edu.

ZYGON Journal of Religion and Science
ZYGON: Journal of Religion and Science is the leading refereed academic English-language journal in its field and has been continuously published on a quarterly basis since 1966. It is present in over 9,000 academic libraries worldwide, including LSTC’s JKM Library. Annually, the journal publishes over 1,000 pages of articles that deal with the many ways in which religious convictions and scientific knowledge interact.

ZYGON is an independent journal, owned by IRAS, the Institute on Religion in an Age of Science, and CASIRAS, the Center for Advanced Study in Religion and Science, in which the LSTC participates. The publishing agent is Wiley-Blackwell. The editorial office shares space with the ZYGON Center for Religion and Science (ZCRS).

The current editor is Willem B. Drees, professor of philosophy of the humanities and dean, Tilburg School of Humanities, the Netherlands. He succeeded long-time editor, Dr. Philip Hefner, professor emeritus (LSTC) and senior fellow of the ZYGON Center for Religion and Science.

Article abstracts may be found on the web at www.zYGONjournal.org. Information on subscriptions, including reduced rates for students, is available by contacting the ZYGON Journal office at zYGON@lstc.edu or 773.256.0671.
Academic Awards

LSTC faculty, alumni, and other supporters of the educational mission of the seminary deeply value the need for future leaders of the church to be skilled biblical exegetes, knowledgeable interpreters of the Christian tradition, and outstanding practitioners of ministry. In support of these hopes, donors to the seminary have made possible through their generous giving the following awards for excellence.

More extensive information about the prizes, including the contact persons, eligibility requirements, and deadlines for submission, is published each academic year via the Student Handbook, and the student newsletter.

Bible and Lutheran Faith Prize
Established through the generosity of an anonymous donor, the Bible and Lutheran Faith Prize challenges LSTC students to remember that their critical analysis and interpretation of biblical texts really matters for people in the Lutheran church today. Authors of essays engage a scriptural text critically and explicitly illustrate the Bible’s relevance for the contemporary world of Lutheran ministry, theology, practice, worship, or ethics.

Drew Yoos and Chris Michaelis shared the 2016 James Kenneth Echols Preaching Prize
Academic Awards

James Kenneth Echols Prize for Excellence in Preaching
The James Kenneth Echols Prize is an annual preaching competition established and funded by Mr. LeRoy T. Carlson, a long-time generous supporter of LSTC’s ministry, in honor of James Kenneth Echols, president of LSTC from 1997–2011. The goals of the prize are to promote the quality and excellence of preaching, to inspire students at LSTC to use fully their varied gifts to improve their preaching skills, to increase the visibility and importance of preaching the gospel on the LSTC campus and the world beyond, and to recognize the Rev. Dr. James Kenneth Echols and his many contributions to LSTC by naming the prize in his honor.

Edgar Krentz Prize for Greek Exegesis
This prize comes from an endowment established by the children of Edgar Krentz, Christ Seminary–Seminex Professor Emeritus of New Testament, to support the teaching and learning of biblical Greek at LSTC. Students are invited to submit an exegetical paper that uses the Greek language to interpret a New Testament text theme. Evaluative criteria include the significance of the text or problem addressed; the use of the Greek language and philological data in New Testament interpretation; quality and clarity of English writing; and application of the conclusions reached to the contemporary church and/or world.

Lutheran Confessions Prize
The annual Lutheran Confessions Prize is made possible by a generous gift from an anonymous donor and is intended to foster contemporary research in the sixteenth-century evangelical Lutheran tradition. Essays submitted for consideration must reflect intensive scholarly research in the Lutheran Confessions and/or the writings of the sixteenth-century Lutheran reformers, although they need not be limited to those sources. Writers are encouraged to bring the Reformation heritage into intentional dialogue with the contemporary theological world.
Lifelong Learning

Coursework

January–Term/Maymester
Each year LSTC offers several intensive January–Term (J–Term) and Maymester courses, primarily designed for master’s level and continuing education students. LSTC students may take a J–term or Maymester course at other ACTS seminaries, thanks to a cross-registration agreement among the theological schools. J–term and Maymester offerings in participating schools are advertised prior to registration periods through the LSTC website. In addition, J–term offerings at the Lutheran Seminary Program of the Southwest (LSPS) and at the other ELCA seminaries may be taken for course credit by LSTC master’s level students.
Dr. Timothy Wengert delivers a Lutheran Heritage Lecture
Leadership Conference
At this annual event, acclaimed theologians and other experts address issues that are both current and crucial to the life of the church. Recent topics were: “Public Church, Public Leaders: Women in Leadership,” “Fear Not: Risks, Ministry and the Gospel,” and “Faithful Living in an Interfaith World.” Rostered professionals and interested laity gather for intellectual and spiritual refreshment through lectures, worship, workshops, and displays. Class reunions and presentation of awards to distinguished alumni are other highlights of the event.

World Mission Institute
Each year LSTC hosts the World Mission Institute, which is jointly sponsored with Catholic Theological Union and McCormick Theological Seminary. This conference focuses on issues and themes related to the worldwide mission of the church from an ecumenical perspective. Some of the recent institute themes were “Mission: From Saving the World to Salvaging the Word,” “Prisons: New Realities, New Mission,” and “New African immigrant Churches and Mission in North America and Europe.”

Tithing and Stewardship Foundation
The Tithing and Stewardship Foundation promotes the practice of proportionate giving which leads to and beyond the tithe and which encourages spiritual growth in the sharing of time, talent and treasure. The foundation continues its nearly 100-year effort to promote the practice of solid stewardship and tithing.

The foundation was formed by a group of lay persons, and its primary source of funding comes from a trust established by founder Thomas Kane. In 2006, the Tithing Foundation board donated the foundation and all of its assets to the Lutheran School of Theology at Chicago with the understanding that LSTC would continue to keep alive the goal of stewardship and tithing education, information and practices. Since then, LSTC has been updating the foundation’s publications and resources, and developing workshops. Recent workshop topics have been “Preaching and Stewardship,” “Re-visioning Stewardship,” and “Stewardship and Social Justice.”

The Tithing and Stewardship Foundation also hosts graduating seniors and their family members at the Senior Capstone Event each spring. The Capstone Event provides students with information on tithing and stewardship and access to other valuable resources, during a weekend that includes recreation and relaxation. For more information visit http://tithing.lstc.edu

The Scherer Lecture
This annual endowed lecture addresses aspects of the church’s worldwide mission, missiology, or the life of the world Christian community. Lecturers include world renowned scholars and religious leaders like Martin Junge, Steve Bevans and Kosuke Koyama. Lecture topics from the recent years include,

Lutheran Heritage Lecture
The annual Lutheran Heritage Lecture series is designed to provide a contemporary perspective on the Lutheran tradition. Recent topics include, “Faith…and Good Works! The Formation of the Lutheran Church through J. Bugenhagen,” “Matthew’s Gospel for the Reformation: ‘The Messiah…Sent and Manifested,’” and “Lutheran Heritage, Mexican Ancestry and the Future of the ELCA.”

Other On-campus Events
Each year, a number of planned conferences and lectures take place at LSTC. Recent conferences and lectures have included hosting the Lutheran World Federation conference, Trinity Institute's 44th National Theological Conference, release events for books authored by faculty or emeriti, and the Gudina Tumsa Theological Forum.
Life Together

Students entering LSTC bring high hopes and expectations about life together in a seminary community. They also experience others’ high hopes and expectations for them as future religious leaders. It is important, in the midst of these high mutual expectations and the rigors and deadlines of graduate study to remember that “life together” is a gift of God to be received and savored with gratitude. It is also an invitation to worship and praise God, to study with and learn from one another, and to care for one another and the world God loves.

LSTC offers students a variety of resources to nurture their spiritual lives, find running head companions in their faith journeys, and strengthen their skills as citizens and leaders. Students who “ask, seek, and knock” will easily find guides, mentors, and friends to nurture the academic, spiritual, civic and professional dimensions of their lives. Each student also has an academic advisor who, though especially involved in academic and professional endeavors, often proves to be a strong source of encouragement and support in integrating the various dimensions of seminary life.
Worship and Spiritual Life

Worship and Music
Worship is central to the life we share at LSTC. In its Mission Statement on Worship, LSTC claims its identity as the church of Jesus Christ, sustained by the word and sacraments of the church and by the power of the Spirit. LSTC's worship seeks to be catholic, contextual, inclusive, ecumenically hospitable, and consistent with the traditions of global Lutheranism. The seminary treasures the diversity of our community, and our worship teams make every effort to explore the rich variety of gifts that we can employ to honor and proclaim the power of the Holy Gospel.

The chapel team works with LSTC students, faculty, and staff to plan and lead worship services each week during the academic year. Music, both vocal and instrumental, plays a significant part in our weekly liturgies. The cantor to the seminary community and the chapel team assist the dean of the chapel in coordinating the planning process. Liturgies at LSTC regularly include the gifts of two fine singing ensembles, the Cantorei and the Gospel Choir. We remain open to other opportunities to experience the sacred arts, including liturgical dance, chancel drama, and other creative expressions of our living faith.

Worship Schedule
Chapel liturgies are offered weekly at 11:15 a.m. Monday chapel is typically a Service of the Word, and Wednesday is always a celebration of Holy Communion. Both Monday and Wednesday feature the preaching of faculty, students, and invited guests. These services employ the liturgical, hymnic, and musical resources of the Christian tradition including Evangelical Lutheran Worship, This Far By Faith, Libro de Liturgia y Cantico, Worship and Praise as well as ecumenical and emerging resources. The weekly pattern for worship also includes an unstructured time every Tuesday called Weekly Sabbatical. Thursday's chapel program, called Text and Context, invites reflection and topical discussion of the scripture readings assigned for the following Sunday. Students also are encouraged to plan and offer other opportunities for corporate worship, including the offices of morning and evening prayer. This pattern for worship forms a foundation for the spiritual life of the entire LSTC community.

Healthy Life
Wellness is multi-dimensional—made up of spiritual, vocational, intellectual, emotional, physical, social, and financial dimensions of well-being. Spiritual well-being is intertwined with and influences our well-being in all other dimensions. The Office of the Pastor to the Community uses the Wholeness Wheel (www.porticobenefits.org/PorticoBenefits/CallToLiveWell.aspx) as a learning and discernment tool to assist students in a variety of ways to tend their bodies, souls, and relationships for academic, professional and personal sustainability and excellence.
Physical Health and Wellness

At the beginning of each academic year, at orientation, the Office of the Pastor to the Community provides a health resource fair offering a wealth of information about staying healthy.

Through an agreement with the University of Chicago, members of the seminary community have access to the university’s athletic complex located across the street from LSTC’s campus. For a reasonable annual fee, community members can use the swimming pool, weight room, racquetball courts, step and rowing machines, stationary bikes, and an indoor track. The Office of the Pastor to the Community processes memberships to the facility.

Each week, students organize basketball, volleyball, and soccer games in the gymnasium of St. Thomas the Apostle Catholic Church, one block east of LSTC.

In addition to planned activities, many members of the community walk, run, or bicycle to keep fit. Paved paths along Lake Michigan make it possible to walk, jog, and bicycle the five miles to downtown Chicago.

The Office of the Pastor to the Community shares information about physicians and dentists who accept the insurance of LSTC students, faculty, and staff.

Spiritual Life and Pastoral Support

The pastor to the community works with professionals within and beyond the seminary community to provide confidential counseling, mediation, spiritual direction, and mental health support for students. The Pastor to the Community also works collaboratively with members of the LSTC faculty and staff as well as student leaders to provide community-building opportunities and programs for mutual support.

The Pastor to the Community is available to offer spiritual care and support (including appropriate referrals) for all members of the LSTC community, including students in all degree programs and their families.
Community Life, Student Government, Refectory and Activities

International Student Affairs Office
LSTC established the International Student Affairs Office (ISAO) in response to the growing number of international students in the community. The director for international student affairs, as part of the Student Services Office, coordinates orientations and transition programs and assists international students with visas and other concerns.

ISAO operates the Duty Free Shop, which receives donated goods to share at no cost with the LSTC community.

Student Government, Committees and Organizations
LSTC has three student government organizations: the Master’s Student Association (MSA) represents MATS, MAM, and MDiv students, the Graduate Student Association (GSA) represents ThM and PhD students and the International Students Association (ISA) represents all of LSTC’s international students.

MSA consists of elected representatives from each class in addition to representatives who identify as LGBTQA, students of color, commuter students, students with a disability, and a student spouse representative. GSA and ISA also have elected leadership. MSA, ISA and GSA advocate on behalf of students in relation to the faculty and administration. Each organization has an elected advisory representative to LSTC’s board of directors.

Students serve on seminary-wide committees such as the Community Life Committee, faculty and administrative search committees, and policy-review committees. Students also form and participate in a variety of student organizations, including Seminarians for Justice, Thesis 96, Corazón, and others.
Refectory

LSTC’s Refectory is another center of community life on campus. Open from 7:00 a.m.–2:00 p.m. Monday through Friday, it serves as a meeting and eating place for everyone on campus and members of the Hyde Park community. The Refectory is more than just a place to get a meal—it is a conduit for the public church focus of LSTC, a space for reconciliation, and a gathering space for community where everyone has a place at the table.

The Refectory provides artful, delicious, and affordable food with global and multicultural influences and an emphasis on cultural diversity, sustainable practices and healthy options. Breakfast, made to order from the grill, is available from 7:00 until 11:30 a.m. Lunch, from 11:30 a.m.–2:00 p.m. includes a choice of different entrees each day, soup of the day, salads made to order as well as hot or cold sandwiches. The Refectory has wireless internet and its accompanying coffee shop, Sola Café, is open until 2:00 p.m. every day as a place to gather and to study.

Other Activities

Students and others are encouraged to establish new traditions and activities. Student-planned activities have included forums about sexuality and ministry; workshops on mental health and transgender; chili cook-offs, silent auctions and other fundraisers for the senior class.
Resident and Commuter Life

Housing
Resident students enjoy the advantages of being on campus and the proximity to the library, refectory and others living in LSTC housing. Students with families find good public schools nearby. The LSTC courtyard, nearby Nichols Park, the University of Chicago campus, and the lakefront offer green space for recreation, walks and picnics. Swings and other playground equipment in the backyards of the apartments are a natural gathering place for children in the community.

The seminary offers students affordable and spacious one-, two-, and three-bedroom apartments for families and two-, three-, and four-person shared apartments for individuals who would like roommates. These vintage Chicago apartments are located across from the seminary and create a space for community, study, and relaxation. Dogs and cats are welcome in family apartments.

Individual Students
Individual students may share an apartment with one, two or three roommates. Apartments are arranged as suites and each student has his or her own bedroom. Common space includes the kitchen, living room, and bathroom. Depending on availability, individual students may choose to live alone in a one-bedroom apartment at the housing rate for families.

Cost details may be found on page 113 in the “Costs, Fees, and Financial Assistance” section of this catalog.

Students with Live-in Family Members
Individual students or families may rent one-, two-, or three-bedroom apartments. The apartments have a kitchen, living room, dining room, bathroom, and bedroom(s). The larger two- and three-bedroom apartments are first made available to students with children.

Cost details may be found on page 113 in the “Costs, Fees, and Financial Assistance” section of this catalog.
Commuter Life
LSTC’s sizable commuter population meets the challenge of balancing classes, studying, work and/or family life and commuting in many ways. Students often schedule classes for one or two days a week and stay on campus in the commuter house. Others share the commute with students from the same area or form study groups near their homes. The Refectory, the JKM Library, the Shelf Lounge, the commuter lounge, and the commuter house are places commuter students use throughout the day for study and socializing.

Commuter House
The commuter house apartment is located at 5430 S. University Ave #3 (3rd floor) and is co-ed. There are five bedrooms, a full kitchen, and two bathrooms. Each bedroom will have one or two single beds and the apartment can be divided into male and female sides. There is basic cable TV and internet service.

Students may stay one or two nights per week. Students needing more than two nights are encouraged to apply for shared student housing. Because there is no live-in manager, cleaning of the apartment common areas, bathrooms, kitchen, appliances, etc. is the shared responsibility of the Commuter House residents. Applications and information is available through the LSTC Housing Office.

Costs for 2016–17: 1 night per week per semester is $300; 2 nights per week per semester is $450; J-Term or Maymester is $30 per night.
LSTC is a place where people from a variety of backgrounds gather to study theology and prepare for ministry. The marks of our seminary—multicultural, ecumenical, interfaith, university-related, urban and global—shape our student body and offer a challenging and enriching context in which to learn and live.

The seminary expects community members to listen to and seek to understand others, to convey that understanding, to share their own views truthfully and charitably, and to resolve conflicts in a manner that allows for constructive change and forgiveness. Students, like faculty and staff, are expected to conduct themselves in a manner befitting leadership in the church.

Expectations of appropriate conduct and grievance procedures for the protection of students and other members of the LSTC community may be found in the Student Handbook. Inappropriate conduct may be grounds for dismissal from seminary and may lead the faculty not to approve the granting of a degree.
Costs, Fees and Financial Assistance

Costs of Seminary Education

We give thanks to God for the financial blessings given to LSTC to fulfill its mission of forming visionary leaders to bear witness to the good news of Jesus Christ.

Tuition covers approximately 20 percent of LSTC’s educational expenses. Therefore, income from gifts and endowment, financial support from synods, churches and support from the national budget of the ELCA cover the remainder of the costs. Every student at LSTC benefits from the generosity of donors, past and present.

LSTC students are experiencing an all-time low in federal student loan borrowing. This is a result of increased scholarship awards, financial wellness education and the continued dedication of LSTC to keep the cost of seminary low for students. With the assistance of the Financial Aid Office, each student develops a plan that works for him or her for meeting all the costs of seminary education.

Both the ELCA and LSTC expect all students to be responsible managers of their financial resources. Through workshops and other offerings on stewardship, individual financial management, counseling, and fair payment policies, the seminary seeks to assist all students in being fiscally responsible.
Costs quoted in this section are those currently in effect and are subject to change. Present and incoming students will be given notice of any such changes.

Estimated Costs
The table below estimates typical first-year costs for various degree programs at LSTC. The costs are shown for only the student (no spouse or dependents). DMin costs are for the summer residency program. Actual costs will vary depending upon the specific characteristics/needs of the student and the degree program pursued. More detailed cost estimates for families and additional years of study are available from the Financial Aid Office and at www.lstc.edu. This table is presented “for information only” to prospective students and others interested in the cost of seminary education.

Application Fees
A non-refundable application fee must accompany each application for admission into a degree program:
• $50 for ThM/PhD
• $35 for Ecumenical DMin
• $50 for ACTS DMin Preaching

Tuition
Tuition for masters and doctor of philosophy degree programs is charged at these rates per course:
• $1,700 for MDiv, MATS, and MAM, a typical course load is nine courses in the first, second and fourth years of the MDiv program. Internship is usually done during the third year (no coursework).
• $3,452 for ThM/PhD a typical course load is six courses in the first and second year (with no coursework after the second year).
• Audited courses, credit by examination, and credit for experience are charged at half the per course rate.
• ThM/PhD students who are not presently taking courses must pay a continuing relations fee each semester (equal to half of the per course rate; currently $1,726 per semester for 2016-17) to retain active status in the Graduate Studies Program.

Tuition for the Doctor of Ministry Programs is:
• $14,974 for all coursework for the Ecumenical DMin
• $10,887 for all coursework for the ACTS DMin Preaching

These tuition rates are subject to change each year, but increases will not apply to candidates already accepted into the program.

This basic fee covers tuition for all courses, seminars, and workshops under the direct control of the seminary or negotiated by the seminary with an adjunct institution. This basic fee does not cover the student’s travel, lodging, board, books, or commencement expenses.

Each student is responsible for covering the program costs.

The ACTS DMin Program rate is billed in six installments over the first three academic years of the program (i.e., one-sixth is billed each semester).

The Ecumenical DMin Program rates are billed in four installments over the first two academic years of the program (i.e. one-fourth is billed each semester).

DMin annual continuation fees:
• The ACTS DMin in Preaching Program charges a $450 annual continuation fee to students whose program extends beyond three academic years.
• The Ecumenical DMin. Program charges a $400 annual continuation fee to full-time students whose program extends beyond two academic years and part-time students whose program extend beyond five academic years.
Other Fees
The activity fee supports a wide range of student interests and activities:
- $35 MSA fee per semester for MA and MDiv
- $25 GSA fee per semester for ThM/PhD

Some field studies fees for diaconal ministry may apply for setting up field studies sites and/or internships.

The graduation fee for all programs is $350. It must be paid even if the candidate chooses not to participate in graduation ceremonies. It is billed at the beginning of the spring semester in the year of graduation and due by the end of the payment grace period for that semester. This fee does not include the cost to purchase or rent academic garb for the graduation ceremony.

The $900 one-time affiliation fee for Lutheran students attending non-ELCA seminaries wishing to affiliate with LSTC must be paid in full with the application for affiliation.

Health Insurance
Student Insurance for 2016–17
All full-time students are required by LSTC policy to carry health insurance. Federal law also requires student, with limited exceptions, to have “minimum essential coverage” or pay a fee. LSTC will ask each student to sign a form stating that they have insurance coverage that meets federal standards.

Tips for Meeting Insurance Requirements
- It is recommended that students begin the process of arranging for coverage no later than July 1 to assure their new coverage is effective on September 1.
- EIIA offers a free service called My Benefit Basket to help students choose the health insurance option that is right for you: www.mybenefitbasket.com. This service is optional but students are encouraged to visit the site to gain more information.
- Students may also purchase coverage directly from the government sponsored health insurance marketplace in their state.

International Students
LSTC will continue to offer the Trailblazer plan through International Student Protection (ISP) for international students and families. Insurance rates and coverage change each year. Please contact Scott Chalmers, dean of student services, at scott.chalmers@lstc.edu for current information. Please contact Katie Croft Lubeck, advanced studies program coordinator and international student administrator, at katie.croftlubeck@lstc.edu with any questions or concerns.

Students on Internship
Students are also required to have insurance while on internship and will need to acquire that insurance. It is important to note that the internship congregation cannot pay for insurance or reimburse the student for insurance costs. Congregations will be instructed to increase the internship stipend by $300/month. If the congregation were to pay for insurance, the student would no longer qualify for any subsidy through the Affordable Care Act.

Please contact Laura Wilhelm at lwilhelm@lstc.edu for more information about health insurance requirements.

Housing Fees

Individual students may share an apartment with one, two or three roommates. Shared apartments are arranged as suites and each student has his or her own bedroom. Common space includes the kitchen, living room, and bathroom. 2016-17 rents per person for apartments shared by individual students are:

- 2 bedrooms (2 students sharing) $487/month (large room); $451/month (standard room)
- 3 bedrooms (3 students sharing) $385/month (large room); $350/month (standard room); $319/month (economy room)
- 4 bedrooms (4 students sharing) $324/month (large room); $289/month (standard room); $263/month (economy room)

Family or private apartments have a kitchen, living room, dining room, bathroom, and bedroom(s). The larger 2- and 3-bedroom apartments are first made available to students with children. 2016-17 rents for family/private apartments are:

- $853/month for 1 bedroom
- $933/month for 2 bedrooms
- $1012/month for 3 bedrooms
All leases are supported by a written agreement executed by the Housing Office. Lease terms are up to one year and end on June 30. The following housing fees also apply:

- A $100 non-refundable housing application fee must be paid with the housing application.
- The damage deposit for LSTC students is one month's rent.
- The $100 annual per-pet fee is non-refundable and not prorated. It must be paid before occupancy or before a pet is housed in the apartment (whether or not it is owned by the renter). If an undisclosed pet is discovered in an apartment, a $200 fee will be assessed covering the remaining lease term. Fish are excluded from the pet fee. Pet fees are charged annually July 1.
Payment and Collection Policies

Payment of Fees, Deposits, and Other Charges
Payment of fees, deposits, and other charges is a contract between the student and the seminary. All fees, deposits, and other charges due at each payment installment must be paid by the date indicated. If any unpaid balance remains after the grace period, a late fee will be assessed.

The student may have an agreement with a sponsor to pay fees and deposits on behalf of the student. However, it is the responsibility of the student to pay all fees and deposits in a timely manner. Only students who have paid their fees, deposits, and other charges may register for classes, sit for exams, and graduate from the seminary. Failure to pay fees and deposits on a timely basis may cause the student to be barred from further studies (including sitting for final exams), regardless of any agreement between the student and their sponsor.

This section summarizes the LSTC’s payment and collection policies. More details may be found in the Student Handbook, and are also available from the Finance Office.

Tuition and Fee Payment
• At least 50 percent of the semester tuition charges must be paid before classes begin. The remaining tuition must be paid within the grace period (December 5 for fall semester and June 5 for spring semester). Documented LSTC financial aid and loan commitments with disbursement dates within the first two weeks of class may satisfy the 50 percent payment requirement (granting of provisional registration). Students should consult with the Finance Office concerning your financial aid and loans at least two weeks before classes begin.
• 100 percent of tuition for J–Term, Summer Session, and audited courses must be paid before classes begin.
• 30 percent of tuition for a Maymester class will be incurred for courses dropped after the official drop date.
• All other fees and charges must be paid in full before classes begin.
• If charges are to be paid to the seminary by a church, agency, or sponsor other than the student, the student is responsible to insure that the payment is received when due. Failure of the church, agency, or other sponsor does not relieve the student of responsibility for payment of such charges.
• All fees must be paid by check or credit card (Visa or Mastercard) in U.S. funds. Be sure to include your LSTC ID# on all payments for prompt and proper credit. A $25 returned payment fee (in addition to any fees charged by banks) will be imposed for insufficient funds/returned checks or credit card charges denied.

Federal Loans
• If utilizing a federal loan for payment, the amounts due LSTC for the entire loan period (see related provision immediately following this provision) will be applied against the loan proceeds possibly restricting all or a portion of any resulting credit balance in the student's account. These amounts due LSTC would include tuition, rent, other fees, and any other amounts currently owed the seminary.

Account Balances and Disbursements

- When a student requests a disbursement from his/her student account, there must be an adequate credit balance to cover unpaid and anticipated charges during the relevant time period.
- There are three relevant time periods to assess credit balances during the academic year: September through January (fall semester and J-Term), February through June (spring semester), and July through August (summer session).
- To determine the portion of an existing credit balance that may be disbursed, a calculation of all amounts due LSTC will be done for the relevant time period (as noted above), including tuition, rent, other fees, and any other amounts currently owed the seminary.
- Anticipated move-out rent credits and the rental security deposit cannot be included in the calculation to provide more funds available for disbursement from a current credit balance.
- Anticipated students loans, LSTC financial aid, scholarships, or gifts cannot be included in the calculation to provide more funds available from a current credit balance.

Registration and “Financial Hold”

- In order to register, all students will be informed of the payment policies and be required to sign a promissory note (an agreement to be responsible for all charges incurred).
- Provisional registration and normal registration can be withdrawn for students not meeting their payment obligations.
- Any past due balance in a student account at the end of the semester grace period (December 5 for fall semester and June 5 for spring semester) will be assessed a 5 percent late fee, and 1.5 percent past due interest each month thereafter.
- When a student’s account becomes past due, the student will be placed on “financial suspension” and a “finance hold” will be applied on the student’s account in the CX/JENZABAR System. The finance hold will prevent the student from: registering for classes; receiving transcripts, diplomas, and other official documentation from the seminary; participating in graduation, internships, and other degree-related requirements; use of the JKM Library; renewing their annual apartment lease; and receiving other seminary services. The financial suspension will be reversed (and the related finance hold released) by the Finance Office when the student has completely satisfied their outstanding balance, including any late fees, past due interest, and collection fees.
- When a student’s account becomes more than 90 days past due, the account can be referred to an external collection agency. The student will be responsible for all collection costs along with reasonable attorney's fees and court costs, not to exceed 50 percent of the original principal balance.

- When a student's account becomes more than 180 days past due, the student will be placed on "financial withdrawal." At this point the student will be administratively withdrawn from the admitted program of study. Any student wishing to return to the program of study must completely satisfy the outstanding balance in their student account, including any late fees, past due interest, and collection fees; present a letter of petition for re-admittance to the chief financial officer; and submit a $100 re-admittance fee with the petition.

- When a student's account has been referred for outside collection or becomes more than 180 days past due, or when a student presents 3 or more returned checks and/or credit card payments to LSTC in a 12-month period, that student will be placed on a "cash only" basis for the next two academic semesters in which classes are taken (J-Term and summer session are cash-only basis for everyone). During this time, the student's semester charges would not qualify for the payment grace period. In these cases, all semester charges (including tuition and any other billed charges) must be paid in full before classes begin.

- The names of students with past due balances must be given to the academic dean, dean of students, director of financial aid, and the student's faculty advisor for their information and appropriate use in interpreting the importance of fiscal responsibility.

LSTC payment and collection policies are reviewed on an annual basis by the vice president for finance; and by the Administration and Finance Committee of the LSTC Board of Directors as necessary. Administration of the policy is the primary responsibility of the Finance Office, with support and collaboration of all other seminary departments and faculty. Exceptions to these policies are allowed only by action of the vice president for finance.
Financial Assistance

The seminary's financial aid and student loan policies reflect our commitment to helping make it feasible for students to follow a call to service as a pastor, deacon, teacher, social worker or other ministry professional.

LSTC's financial aid awards are primarily based on merit and secondarily on need. Our students also benefit from generous scholarships and grants from outside organizations such as churches, synods and foundations. LSTC scholarships are not reduced when a student receives additional funding. Due to the generosity of donors, most master of divinity students find that between LSTC, church, synod and foundation contributions, their tuition is covered.

The first form of financial assistance that all students receive is subsidized cost of tuition and housing. Contributions from donors make it possible for LSTC to keep tuition and housing rates low. Next, at the time of application to a degree program, each student receives a financial aid award letter clearly outlining clearly their LSTC award. Finally, students continue to receive information throughout their programs on available scholarships and other important financial wellness tools.

LSTC is part of the Federal Direct Loan Program, but works with students to seek other sources of funding first, which in many cases make loans unnecessary. LSTC's holistic and individualized approach to awarding financial aid provides students not only with generous financial aid awards but also an outlook on finances that will serve their future ministry.

MAM, MATS and MDIV students receive LSTC financial aid on a per class basis. Advanced Studies students receive LSTC financial aid through fellowships and scholarships determined by faculty nominations each year. There are a limited number of Doctor of Ministry scholarships available for highly qualified students.

Detailed information on applying for financial aid is found on LSTCNet.

Student Employment Opportunities

The seminary assumes that a normal load of courses requires full-time study. However, it recognizes that many students find it necessary to seek part-time employment. The seminary maintains a file of job opportunities for students seeking part-time work and spouses seeking full-time employment.

Many of the available off-campus jobs are within walking distance of the campus. The seminary itself employs a number of students on its maintenance crew, in the library and food service, as faculty assistants, and in part-time clerical positions. Employment applications are available from the office of operations.

For the sake of the integrity of the academic program, a student should not work more than 20 hours per week while carrying a full course load. A student who must work more than this should expect to spend more than the normal number of years completing degree requirements.
Course Offerings

LSTC offers courses during fall and spring semester terms for credit in the MDiv, MATS, MAM, ThM and PhD degree programs, as well as intensive January-term and Maymester courses primarily for the first masters level (MDiv, MATS, MAM). The full listing of LSTC courses offered each term may be found on the LSTC website under Academics and at LSTCNet.

Courses for the Ecumenical DMin and the ACTS DMin in Preaching are listed separately.

Students may also choose courses from the offerings of other Association of Chicago Theological Schools (ACTS), subject to limitations specified by the degree program in which they are enrolled. There is no charge for cross-registration at ACTS schools apart from the tuition normally paid to the student’s own school. Each spring ACTS publishes an online catalog of hundreds of course offerings at its 11 member schools for the coming year at www.actschicago.org. This online catalog provides titles, course numbers, and descriptions, names of faculty teaching the courses, and dates and times the courses are offered.

In addition to courses through LSTC and ACTS, students may arrange independent studies with a professor at LSTC on a wide variety of subjects.

Several LSTC courses may also be offered online.
General Comments
Required orienting 300-level courses and pathway 400-level courses are designed for MDiv, MATS, and MAM students. Master of theology (ThM) and doctor of philosophy (PhD) students normally do not take these courses, except in some cases as a component of an independent study in a related topic. Students in all degree programs may take 500-level courses. 600-level courses are designed for advanced degree students, but may be taken by others with the instructor's permission.

Courses are counted as whole units rather than by credit hours. One unit of credit is given for each course that is satisfactorily completed. One unit is equivalent to 3 semester hours or 4 quarter hours.

Each course generally meets one to three times weekly for a total of three hours per week. The normal course load for full-time MDiv, MATS, and MAM students is four courses per term. For full-time ThM and PhD students the norm is three courses per term, or fewer when attending to additional degree requirements such as language and other examinations.

Understanding Course Coding at LSTC
Courses in the new curriculum are coded according to competency areas:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Competency</th>
<th>Code</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Spiritual Formation</td>
<td>SF</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Religious Heritage I: Scripture</td>
<td>RHS</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Religious Heritage II: History and Theology</td>
<td>RHTH</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ministerial Leadership</td>
<td>ML</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Cultural Context</td>
<td>CC</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
Courses that contribute to the development of more than one competency area may be cross-listed with both codes. For example, CC/RHS or RHS/CC may refer to a course that deals with interpreting scripture within particular cultural contexts, or SF/ML or ML/SF may refer to a course that explores spiritual practices as a dimension of ministerial leadership. When registering, the first code in the cross-listing informs the registrar how the course is being used in the student's academic program.

Course numbers indicate the level at which each course is offered: orienting (300-level), pathway (400-level), competency (500-level), or advanced (600-level):

<thead>
<tr>
<th>Number</th>
<th>Level</th>
<th>Explanation</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>300–399</td>
<td>Orienting</td>
<td>Required for MDiv, MATS, and MAM</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>400–499</td>
<td>Pathway</td>
<td>Develops competencies</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>500–599</td>

<tr>
<td>600–699</td>
<td>Advanced</td>
<td>Designed primarily for ThM and PhD students; open to MDiv, MATS, and MAM students with strong academic preparation (with instructor’s permission)</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Students continuing in the old MDiv, MATS, and MAM curricula and students in the ThM and PhD degree programs will continue to rely on course coding that is more directly related to traditional fields of study. LSTC courses are listed in the ACTS Course Catalog under similar categories related to fields of study:

Klaus-Peter Adam
Associate Professor of Old Testament

Theological Exam  Eberhard-Karls-University
(equals MA)  Tubingen
PhD  Philipps-University Marburg
Habilitation  Philipps-University Marburg

Born in Stuttgart, Germany, Klaus-Peter Adam has studied in Berlin, Tubingen, Munich, Marburg and at the Oriental Institute in Chicago. Prior to coming to LSTC, he served as an ordained minister in the Lutheran Church of Wuerttemberg, was a research scholar and taught in the field of Old Testament and Religious Studies from 2002–2008 at Marburg, Hamburg, Bremen and Erlangen. Combining historical and theological dimensions of Old Testament scholarship, his work interfaces philological, historical, literary, and comparative methods. He currently works on private enmity and friendship in biblical law, in narratives and in the Psalms. He compares the patterns of kinship feud in antiquity with patterns of conflict settlement in sub-legal spheres of modern societies, for instance, in contemporary gangland Chicago. He reflects on ways in which faith communities can respond to mechanisms of violence around them. His other scholarly interests include historiography, the stories about Saul and David, the book of Kings, biblical archaeology and the material culture of Palestine/Israel, the impact of drama on biblical narratives, constructs of masculinity in the Hebrew Bible. A passionate jogger along the borders of Lake Michigan, he is also interested in food justice in the north Kenwood neighborhood, enjoys riding his bike year round, as well as reading modern fiction and listening to early music.

Terrence Baeder
Director of Field Education

BA  Concordia Senior College, Ft. Wayne
MDiv  Concordia Seminary, St. Louis
STM  Christ Seminary, Seminex
DMin  Christ Seminary, Seminex

Terry Baeder is a pastor in the ELCA, with advanced degrees in pastoral counseling. He has served as a parish pastor in a variety of congregational settings. He has also served as a hospital chaplain and a chaplain in the federal bureau of prisons, as a pastoral counselor for Lutheran Social Services of Illinois, as the director of a regional social service office (LSSI), the executive director of pastoral care (LSSI), and interim vice president of program services (LSSI). He has extensive training in multiple staff team development, conflict resolution and crisis management. He served as dean of community and dean of students at LSTC from 2007–2012.
Kathleen D. Billman
John H. Tietjen Professor of Pastoral Ministry:
Pastoral Theology; Director, Master of Divinity
Program; Associate Dean for Academic Programs

BA Muskingum College
MDiv Princeton Theological Seminary
ThM Princeton Theological Seminary
PhD Princeton Theological Seminary

Kathleen D. (Kadi) Billman’s areas of teaching and scholarship are pastoral theology and pastoral care. She is the author of several articles and book chapters and is co-author of Rachel’s Cry: Prayer of Lament and Rebirth of Hope and co-editor of C(H)AOS Theory: Reflections of Chief Academic Officers in Theological Education. Nurtured in both the Lutheran (ALC) and Methodist traditions, Billman is an ordained United Methodist clergywoman who served for 14 years in Trenton, NJ, in two urban, multicultural congregations before being elected to the LSTC faculty. She seeks to articulate methodologies of care that take individual quests for wholeness and communal struggles for justice seriously. Longstanding academic and pastoral interests include contemporary grief theory and pastoral ministry, care for the dying and bereaved, and narrative theory and pastoral care/leadership. She enjoys reading pastoral and theological memoirs, and frequently draws on memoirs in classes on pastoral ministry. She lives in the East Side neighborhood of Chicago in a church parsonage with her spouse Jim Galuhn, who is pastor of the East Side United Methodist Church, and Lucas—an affectionate pug with a voracious appetite. Kadi and Jim are glad to live within easy driving distance of their son Adam, who teaches history at Oswego High School. She enjoys playing keyboard in the church’s music group, “Illumination,” and loves to accompany avid hymn singers on the piano and play Scrabble.

Esther M. Menn
Dean and Vice President for Academic Affairs;
Ralph W. and Marilyn R. Klein Professor of Old Testament/Hebrew Bible

BA Luther College
MA Lutheran School of Theology at Chicago
MA University of Chicago Divinity School
PhD University of Chicago Divinity School

No stranger to Chicago’s Hyde Park neighborhood, Esther Menn did her graduate studies at LSTC and the University of Chicago. Following her advanced studies, she taught in the department of religious studies at the University of Virginia. Special interests include literary and rhetorical study of the Bible, feminist and multicultural appropriations of scripture, the history of biblical interpretation, and theology and the arts. She is currently editing a book about contemporary approaches to the Psalms. She has also written on Genesis, Exodus, Jeremiah, Song of Songs, and Esther. Menn is deeply dedicated to Jewish-Christian dialogue and is a member of the ELCA Consultative Panel on Lutheran-Jewish Relations and the Christian Scholars Group on Christian-Jewish Relations. She co-edited Contesting Texts: Jews and Christians in Conversation about the Bible, and contributed a chapter on “Law and Gospel,” in Covenantal Conversations: Christians in Dialogue with Jews and Judaism, which now has a Select Learning companion DVD of the same title, intended for congregational use, and organizes events in Jewish-Christian relations. With colleague Barbara Rossing, Menn leads a January travel seminar to Israel and Palestine every other year. Menn lives in campus housing with her husband Bruce Tammen, daughter Kaia, and sons Joseph, Elijah, and Daniel. Urban organic gardening and enjoying the sand beaches of Lake Michigan’s southern end are family passions.

James Nieman began as the President of the Lutheran School of Theology at Chicago in the fall of 2012. A professor for 25 years, he has taught about leadership in religious organizations, qualitative contextual research methods, and various topics in the area of practical theology, including homiletics. His recent research focuses on how to discern and use local theological claims in congregations, and on the recovery of phronesis within and for theological education. He is past president of the Association of Practical Theology, past secretary of the International Academy of Practical Theology, served on the board of directors of the Louisville Institute, and was co-editor of the International Journal of Practical Theology. Besides many journal articles, Nieman is co-author of Christian Practical Wisdom: What It Is, Why It Matters (2016), author of Knowing the Context: Frames, Tools, and Signs for Preaching (2008), co-editor of Church, Identity, and Change: Theology and Denominational Structures in Unsettled Times (2005), and co-author of Preaching to Every Pew: Cross-Cultural Strategies (2001). Prior to his arrival at LSTC, Dr. Nieman was first on the faculty of Wartburg Theological Seminary for 13 years, and then on the faculty of Hartford Seminary, where he also served as academic dean. He has been ordained in the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America for over three decades and served as a parish pastor in congregations in Iowa and Alaska prior to his doctoral studies at Emory University.
Richard J. Perry Jr.
Professor of Church and Society and Urban Ministry; Coordinator of the Urban Ministry Emphasis

- BA  Carthage College
- MDiv  Lutheran School of Theology at Chicago
- ThM  Lutheran School of Theology at Chicago
- PhD  Lutheran School of Theology at Chicago

Richard Perry Jr. is an ordained minister of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America (ELCA). He has served God in a variety of calls: as a parish pastor, a synodical official, and as a churchwide staff person. He brings to his teaching a wealth of knowledge and experience in African American ministry, multicultural ministry, and ethics. His primary research is in African American ethical thought (19th and 20th century), African American Lutheran theological and ethical thinking, health care, bioethics, environmental justice, and ministry in urban congregations. Perry has a passion for connecting the classroom with life in the diverse communities and neighborhoods of Chicago. He is active within the ELCA, holds membership in the Conference of International Black Lutherans (CIBL), and serves as a member of the board of the Urban Clinical Pastoral Education Consortium, Inc. His current research involves exploring health care and bioethics from an African American perspective and the role of race and poverty as it affects health outcomes of African American people.

Perry has contributed chapters in Theology and the Black Experience, The Promise of Lutheran Ethics, co-authored a chapter in Faithful Conversations: Christian Perspectives on Homosexuality, and edited Catching a Star: Transcultural Reflections on a Church for All People.

Jan Schnell Rippentrop
Alex Jacob and Gerda Maria (Swanson)
Carlson Chair in Homiletics;
Director, Master of Arts Programs
BA Luther College
MDiv Wartburg Theological Seminary
PhD Emory University (ABD, PhD expected 2017)

Before coming to LSTC in 2015, Jan Schnell Rippentrop served the incredible people of Zion Lutheran Church in Iowa City as pastor. She has also served interim pastorates at Hope Lutheran Church in Dixon, Iowa, and at Grace Lutheran Church in Davenport, Iowa. Rippentrop teaches homiletics and specializes in the exegetical process toward preaching, which involves both exegesis of the biblical text and exegesis of the assembly. Her research and writing have focused around the dangerous expectations that are formed by liturgical epicleses and eschatological homiletics. A liturgical epiclesis invokes the Holy Spirit's presence within communal worship. The Spirit's presence creates an expectation of God's movement in the world, which is dangerous to the extent that it makes claims on our lives and, at times, opposes worldly powers. Eschatological homiletics proclaims the in-breaking of God's redemptive acts. Our expectation of God's eschatological coming is a dangerous expectation when it implicates us and our communities in acts of justice on behalf of a world in need. An avid art enthusiast, Rippentrop studies and promotes lyrical preaching, and she practices a form of slam preaching that relies on the methods and theories of slam poetry.

José David Rodríguez
Augustana Heritage Professor of Global Mission and World Christianity
BA Universidad de Puerto Rico
MDiv Lutheran School of Theology at Chicago
ThM Lutheran School of Theology at Chicago
PhD Lutheran School of Theology at Chicago

Born in the mission field (Puerto Rico) with a rich pastoral and academic experience, José David Rodríguez is one of the earlier Lutheran Latino scholars in the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America and its predecessor bodies. After approximately 20 years as director of the Hispanic/Latino Ministry program at the seminary, and seven years as director of the ThM/PhD Program, Rodríguez has been a long-standing recruiter, coordinator, and teacher of students for the various ministries of the church. On occasion he has volunteered his services for pastoral work in local Latino/a ministry in congregations, while his scholarship in the areas of systematic theology, ethics, world Christianity, mission, and ministry has enriched the resources of interdisciplinary studies in North America, Latin America, and other parts of the world. Rodríguez continues his active involvement in national and international organizations providing leadership and resources for the formation of pastors, religious leaders and scholars for an ecumenical and inter-religious witness in today’s world. After a two-year leave of absence, serving as the Rector (Chancellor) and Professor of Systematic Theology at the University Institute ISEDET, an ecumenical Protestant Center of Theological formation in Buenos Aires, Argentina, and Associate Pastor of La iglesia luterana La Cruz de Cristo, he returned to LSTC where he is presently serving as Professor of Systematic Theology.

Barbara R. Rossing
Professor of New Testament

BA Carleton College
MDiv Yale Divinity School
ThD Harvard Divinity School

Barbara Rossing has taught at LSTC since 1994. She teaches courses on Jesus and the Gospels, Revelation, Paul, early Christian and Jewish apocalypticism, and early Christian communities. With a strong interest in biblical ecological hermeneutics, she advises the LSTC Environmental Ministries Emphasis and loves to co-teach the Zygon Center's “Future of Creation” course. She is the author of The Rapture Exposed: The Message of Hope in the Book of Revelation (2004); The Choice Between Two Cities: Whore, Bride and Empire in the Apocalypse (1999); Journeys Through Revelation: Apocalyptic Hope for Today (2010), as well as articles and book chapters on Revelation and ecology, and “Prophets, Prophetic Movements and the Voices of Women” in A People’s History of Christianity, and two New Proclamation commentaries for preachers. Rossing is a frequent lecturer in international ecumenical and ELCA settings. Previously Rossing served as chaplain to Harvard Divinity School, pastor and teacher at the Holden Village retreat center, and pastor in Minneapolis. From 2003 to 2010 she chaired the Lutheran World Federation's theology and studies committee, and led the LWF delegations to the United Nations climate change summits in Copenhagen and Cancun.
Lea F. Schweitz
Associate Professor of Systematic Theology/Religion and Science; Director of the Zygon Center for Religion and Science (ZCRS); Coordinator of Religion and Science Emphasis
BA Luther College
MA University of Chicago Divinity School
PhD University of Chicago Divinity School

Lea F. Schweitz joined the faculty of LSTC in 2007 and teaches in theology and religion and science. She pursues interdisciplinary questions about how we envision our humanity through relationships with God, nature, and human communities. Recent publications include a chapter, “Mysterium Opossum” in an edited volume, Chicago Creatures: Humans and Animals in an Urban Environment. In both her teaching ministry and her research, she is committed to interdisciplinary interaction, historical sensitivity, community building, and the integration of academic concern with practical and public care. In addition, she is the director of Zygon Center for Religion and Science (www.zygoncenter.org) and looks forward to continuing the center’s practice of bringing religious traditions together with the best scientific knowledge in order to promote a more just and peaceful world. She is a thoroughgoing Midwesterner and an emerging, amateur urban naturalist who loves good questions and long walks along Lake Michigan with her family.

Benjamin M. Stewart
Gordon A. Braatz Associate Professor of Worship; Director of Advanced Studies
BA Capital University
MDiv Trinity Lutheran Seminary
STM Lutheran Theological Seminary at Philadelphia
PhD Emory University

Professor Stewart teaches courses on Christian liturgy and theology. Especially interested in the ecotheological implications of ritual, he serves as the convener of the Ecology and Liturgy Seminar of the North American Academy of Liturgy and is the author of A Watered Garden: Christian Worship and Earth’s Ecology (2011). His current book project is a liturgical ecotheology of natural burial. He previously served as pastor to a small, Appalachian community in Ohio, and as village pastor to Holden Village retreat center in the Glacier Peak Wilderness of Washington. An avid hiker, kayaker, and bicyclist, Stewart lives in Western Springs, near Bemis Woods and the Salt Creek, with his wife, Beth, and their son Justin.
An ordained pastor of the ELCA, Mark Swanson teaches in the areas of Christian-Muslim studies and interfaith relations, church history (with an emphasis on early/medieval and on Middle Eastern church history), and world Christianity. He directs the Interfaith Emphasis at LSTC. Before coming to the great ecumenical and interfaith meeting-place that is the city of Chicago (and the neighborhood of Hyde Park), Swanson taught at Luther Seminary, St. Paul, Minn. (1998–2006) and at the Evangelical Theological Seminary in Cairo, Egypt (1984–1998). His research interests include the history of Christian-Muslim relations, medieval Egyptian church history, and early Arabic Christian literature. Swanson is the author of The Coptic Papacy in Islamic Egypt (641–1517) (Cairo and New York: American University in Cairo Press, 2010), a co-editor of volumes including (with M. Shenoda, J. den Heijer, and Y. Lev) Non-Muslim Communities in Fatimid Egypt (10th–12th centuries CE) = Medieval Encounters 21, no. 4–5 (2015), and was Christian Arabic section editor for the first five volumes (covering the years 600–1500 CE) of the reference work Christian-Muslim Relations: A Bibliographical History, ed. D. Thomas et al. (Leiden and Boston: Brill, 2009–2013). It is Swanson’s hope that students and teachers together learn to encounter Christians of other times and places, as well as people of faith from traditions other than their own, with hospitality of spirit and a readiness to learn in order to grow as theologians and leaders of faith communities in our religiously diverse world.

Linda E. Thomas

Professor of Theology and Anthropology

- BA Western Maryland College
- MDiv Union Seminary, N.Y.
- PhD American University, Washington D.C.

Linda Thomas deeply and mindfully engages God’s presence in her life and work. She embodies a womanist perspective, which means she is anti-oppressionist, concerned about the vernacular, non-ideological, communitarian, and spiritual. The life and ministry of Jesus Christ guides her constructive theology and ethical commitment to vulnerable people created in God’s image across the globe.

Peter Vethanayagamony
Associate Professor of Church History

BTh Serampore University, India
BD United Theological College, India [MDiv]
BEd Annamalai University, India
MA Osmania University, India [Philosophy]
MA Annamalai University, India [History]
MTh United Theological College, India
ThM Lutheran School of Theology at Chicago
PhD Lutheran School of Theology at Chicago

Peter Vethanayagamony’s major teaching interests are modern church history, Asian church history, mission and ecumenism. His teaching is highly informed and influenced by the global and ecumenical perspectives. He strongly believes that “Church History is not the millstone we often make it out to be; rather it is made up of milestones that mark times of transition, times of renewal, times of faith, that root us, hold us accountable, and give us a vision for the future.” A society unaware of its history is a society suffering amnesia—it has lost its identity. He is also convinced that church history is all about making connections on multiple levels with “living voices of people who just happen to be dead.” By connecting with these voices, by dialoging with the “cloud of witnesses,” we not only know about the past, but we may also learn how to live more faithfully in the present. His research interests include non-Western churches in the West, and early Indian Lutheranism. Before joining LSTC, he taught church history at Chennai, India, for 16 years, where he also served as academic dean. His pastoral ministry in the Chicago region over nine years includes outreach ministry and mission. He is married to Serene.

Christine Wenderoth
Director of JKM Library; Associate Professor of Ministry

BA Oberlin College
MSLS University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill
MA Emory University
PhD Emory University

Christine Wenderoth’s teaching, administration and research interests are not centered only on research, access, preservation, organization and all those activities traditionally associated with libraries, but also the teaching, learning, and research (meaning the mere act of finding stuff and thinking about what you’ve found). Additional emphases include reading which takes place outside the classroom; the impact of technology on community and knowledge; the role of place where people gather with each other, a cuppa java; and how literacy is changing under the impact of on-line environments and globalization. Christine seeks to explore how these new literacies affect theological education and ministry. These are the interests which energize her more obvious role as librarian and Christian education teacher.

Vítor Westhelle, a Brazil-born professor of systematic theology, is a theologian and teacher who adeptly combines theology, philosophy and literature. In his teaching and writing, words and images turn into a body of work, which, as a colleague said, “calls forth from the depths a primal sense of what theology should be doing.” Teaching both prospective leaders for the church and for the academia he draws students’ attention to the contemporary planetary challenges and the quandaries of its different publics. His publications cover traditional theological loci, and attend to interdisciplinary matters. Notable among his books are: The Scandalous God: The Use and Abuse of the Cross, The Church Event: Call and Challenge of a Church Protestant, After Heresy: Colonial Practices and Post–Colonial Theologies, Word in Words: Musings of the Gospel, Eschatology and Space: The Lost Dimension in Theology Past and Present. His most recent book is on Luther’s Theology in global contexts, titled Transfiguring Luther: The Planetary Promise of Luther’s Theology. Ordained in the Lutheran Church in Brazil (IECLB), Westhelle served several congregations and was the coordinator of the Ecumenical Commission on Land (CPT) in the State of Paraná, Brazil, where he was an enabler and a companion with those struggling for land and justice. For the last five years he held concurrently appointments as Chair of Luther Research at Faculdades EST, Brazil, and as Honorary Professor at Aarhus University, Denmark. He is trying, in his words, “to learn not to be everywhere, but bring to where I am every place there is in me.”
